SECOND JURY

PANEL CALLED IN SHEPHERD CASE

MOST OF JURORS DISMISSED, HAD FORMED OPINIONS ON SAME

OTHERS EXCUSED BY STATE FOR OBJECTING TO DEATH
PENALTY

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 21.—The atmosphere charged with rumors of plots and counter-plots to bribe and tamper with jurors and witnesses, 100 new veniremen were called today in attempting to secure a jury to try William D. Shepherd on the charge that he murdered Billy McClintock.

The first panel of 100 prospective jurors neared exhaustion and still no jury was permanently accepted. The second panel was summoned at once in order to prevent delay.

Most of the jurors were dismissed because they had formed opinions on Shepherd's guilt or innocence through the wide publicity given the case. Many others were excused by the state because they objected to giving the death penalty.

Search for Robert White, missing star witness for the prosecution, became intense today. Detectives returned from St. Joseph, Mich., with information that a couple had registered at a hotel there under the names of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Wilson of Topeka, Kansas. They have since left, their destination unknown.

Attorneys said they believed this couple was White and his wife. White and his family disappeared from the hotel here, leaving word they were going away until after the Shepherd trial because they feared violence. Meanwhile, the grand jury was questioning witnesses regarding White's disappearance. Arthur Byrne, said to be an investigator for the defense, was quizzed again today. He was examined first late yesterday.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, directing the grand jury, said that he hoped to have indictments later in the day.

NARCOTIC ADDICTS DECEIVED BY 'MENTAL JAGS,' SAID HARMLESS

St. Paul, May 21.—"Mental morphine jags" were introduced to St. Paul Tuesday.

Fifty members of the St. Paul Retail Druggists association, meeting at the Ryan hotel, were told how "junkies"—which is underworld jargon for narcotic addicts—"kidded" themselves into believing that a harmless headache preparation gave them the desired effect.

On a recent raid by federal narcotic agents in St. Paul 150 empty headache tablet boxes and a number of empty paregoric bottles were found in a suspect's room, inspectors John Hesse and Walter G. Graben told the druggists.

"A thorough test revealed that the headache tablets contained iodine in very small quantities," the agents said, "so small as to be practically negligible and of no harmful effect, yet these inveterate narcotic users, believing the stuff to be strongly narcotic, 'got a kick' out of it."

"This is just one instance of 'mental morphine jags' which are possible."

"The paregoric, of course, contained more than a suspicion of narcotic. In each fluid ounce of the liquid there is a powerful narcotic—sufficient to produce the desired effect."

The druggists were warned of the necessity for accurately keeping records of their narcotic drug dispensation.

Fifty doctors and between 15 and 20 druggists have since the first of the year been reported to the federal narcotic offices for failure to keep proper records or for issuing improper narcotic prescriptions.

Inspectors Hesse and Graben were assigned to attend the meeting by H. H. Wouters, agent in charge, Minneapolis.

FRENCH MOROCCAN TROOPS IN SALLY AGAINST THE RIFFS

(By United Press)
Rabat, Morocco, May 21.—The French Moroccan troops have started a big offensive to free the outpost in the Rifian region of Tanouat.

There is no doubt here that Abd El Krim, Rif chieftain, is trying to take Fez. Some rumors claimed the Rifians are receiving support from Germany.

FIVE MEN SHOT, SCORES HURT IN DALLAS, TEX., RIOT

2,000 MEN AND WOMEN STORMED
THE COUNTY JAIL

SOUGHT TO LYNCH TWO CON-FESSED NEGRO MUR-
DERERS

(By United Press)
Dallas, Tex., May 21.—Five men were shot, one seriously, and scores injured in a clash with officers when a mob of 2,000 men and women stormed the county jail here early today in a futile attempt to lynch Frank and Lorenzo Noel, confessed negro murderers.

The attack came shortly after 1 a. m. when the crowd ventured near the building. Over 100 shots were fired during the fierce fight. The besieging mob dispersed at dawn. Seventy-five officers armed with shotguns and tear bombs were on duty following the attack and will be kept at the jail to avert further disturbances.

GIRL BELIEVED KIDNAPED

UNKNOWN MAN SHOT MRS EMMA TOWNES AND BURNED
SUMMER HOME

(By United Press)
Winthrop, Mo., May 21.—Authorities and hundreds of citizens volunteers up to early today had found no trace of Miss Aida Hayward, believed to have been kidnaped yesterday. The supposed kidnaping followed the wounding of Miss Hayward's aunt, Mrs. Emma Townes who was shot in the cottage at Lake Marnacook where the two were living. An unknown man appeared at the cottage, shot Mrs. Towne in the back and arm and then burned down the building. He is believed to have taken Miss Hayward with him when he fled.

Bloodhounds were put on the trail last night at the request of Fred Moulton of Lexington, Mass., a brother-in-law of the missing girl. Moulton offered a reward of $1,000 for the rescue of Miss Hayward and the capture of her kidnapper.

CHARGED WITH DELAYING LETTER

(By United Press)
Winona, Minn., May 21.—One indictment returned against U. B. Harris, former postmaster at St. Charles, charging unlawfully delaying a letter, was dismissed in federal court yesterday. Action on four other counts, three charging embezzlement, have been continued.

Gets a Judgment Against Defunct Bank

(By United Press)
Deadwood, S. D., May 21.—Former Governor McCray of Indiana was awarded judgment of $12,000 against the defunct Black Hills Trust & Savings Company of Deadwood in federal district court late yesterday. Suit arose over the sale of cattle on the McCray ranch.

N. WISCONSIN HIDDEN AMONG SMOKE CLOUDS

HUNDREDS OF FIRE FIGHTERS WORKING TO CHECK THE FIRES

ASSUME DANGER POINT IN FOUR NORTHERN WISCONSIN
COUNTIES

(By United Press)
Laona, Wis., May 21.—Northern Wisconsin today was hidden in smoke with hundreds of fire fighters working frantically to check the forest fires which flared up anew during the night.

Forest fires were assuming dangerous proportions in many sections of Forest, Oconto, Oneida and Langdale counties threatening farms, summer homes and in one place an entire village. Volunteer fighters assisted by several companies of the Wisconsin National guardsmen were battling flames which had reached within a mile of this city.

So serious is the situation that practically all this city's inhabitants have joined in the fight of checking the flames before they envelop the entire village.

Several summer resorts were endangered and streams of water were continually being poured on cottages and in this manner the fighters were keeping the situation in hand. Fires today were estimated to have swept over 85,000 acres of forest land.

BANDMASTERS TO ASSEMBLE IN ST. CLOUD

(By United Press)
St. Cloud, Minn., May 21.—Bandmasters from all parts of the state are gathering here today for the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Bandmasters' association to promote "Better Bands for Minnesota." The association will be in session until Saturday.

Featuring the convention will be a concert by the Third Infantry Band of Fort Snelling and the St. Cloud Boy's band, tomorrow and Saturday.

HEAT RECORDS FOR MAY IN TEXAS

TORRID WAVE BREAKS ALL FIG-URES IN LONE STAR
STATE

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 21.—All heat records for May were broken in Texas and equalled in Nebraska during a torrid wave which gripped the southwest and parts of the middle west yesterday and continuing today, according to Professor Henry Cox, head of the United States weather bureau here. In the Panhandle district of Texas temperatures mounted to 100 degrees, the highest May mark in the history of that section.

At Omaha and other Nebraska cities, official thermometers registered 96 degrees, higher than all May records. Ninety degrees were reported from St. Louis, Kansas City and other Missouri cities. Des Moines, Ia., reported 94.

Chicago gave promise of a stifling heat late yesterday when thermometers showed 80 degrees. A fresh wind from the lake this morning, however, sent the mercury toppling to the 55 degree mark within an hour. A similar drop was recorded at St. Paul, which yesterday had 90 degrees.

MINE WALLS CAVE, 2 BROTHERS KILLED

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—Two miners, brothers, were instantly killed late yesterday when the walls of the Stephenson Mine, 10 miles west of here caved in. No report was given of the probable cause. The dead are Nicholas and George Yilleck.

MILLION DOLLAR RUM SYNDICATE IS BEING PROBED

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, May 21.—Federal agents are today investigating an alleged $1,000,000 alcohol syndicate with headquarters here. The investigation is the outgrowth of the questioning of a stenographer supposed to have been in the employ of the syndicate heads. According to federal agents, the girl disappeared after the initial grilling, but was later retaken. At that time she is said to have had $2,500 and a railroad ticket to Denver alleged to have been paid her by her employers for her silence.

90 DEGREES WAS MARK YESTERDAY

NO PROSTRATIONS, SO FAR, RE-PORTED IN MINNE-SOTA

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 21.—After reaching a maximum of 90 degrees late yesterday afternoon, the temperature dropped to 58 degrees this morning.

Prospects, however, seemed favorable for another hot day in this section as weather forecast predicted not much change in temperature. The heat wave here caused some discomfort due to the sudden change from a cool spring. No prostrations were reported.

NORTH DAKOTA SUFFERS FROM HEAT

YESTERDAY'S MAXIMUM TEM-PERATURE BOUNDED TO
93 DEGREES

(By United Press)
 Fargo, N. D., May 21.—North Dakota's first touch of hot weather this year which brought unusually high temperatures over the state yesterday, seemed destined for at least another day when early morning readings registered 84 degrees here.

Showers were forecast for today and if these materialize slight drops may be expected, weather bureau officials said. Yesterday's maximum of 93 was recorded here which equalled last summer's hottest day.

Throughout the state temperatures yesterday ranged from 76 at Grand Forks to the maximum here.

Reports here from northwestern Canada showed somewhat cooler temperatures, the mercury reaching around 60. In Montana slightly higher readings were reported.

SMALL GRAINS ARE THRIVING

WARM WEATHER WILL ENCOUR-AGE CORN PLANT-ING

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 21.—The Minnesota Co-operative reporting service today gave out the following report of conditions in the state:

"Since the last weekly report general rains have relieved the situation and with warm weather will cause rapid improvement of pastures and small grains. Frosts the first part of week did further damage to home gardens and fruit prospects, although frost was spotted.

"Warm weather the last few days will encourage corn planting and with favorable weather it should be pushed rapidly to completion. Due to cold weather, pastures are not yet furnishing much pasturage, but conditions have improved. Meadow and hay lands show slow growth.

"Some sections still need rain. Livestock is reported in good condition in every section of the state."

BIG INSURANCE BUSINESS WITH BARS REVEALED

POLICIES SUSPECTED TO HAVE PROMISED IMMUNITY FROM
RAIDS

DETECTIVE BUREAU, OPERATED
BY WM. F. STUTE, HAD 300
CLIENTS

St. Paul, May 21.—Records which show that William F. Stute, Jr., did na extensive insurance business with proprietors of soft drink bars were revealed by government investigators today.

The headquarters for Stute's detective bureau are located in Waseca, Minn. According to the records seized its business amounted to about $10,000 last year.

Stute is being sought in an investigation started when John Sakolik, convicted St. Paul bootlegger, declared in Ramsey county court that his insurance policy with Stute carried a promise of immunity from raids by prohibition officers.

The records which the government investigators have obtained cover the transactions of the Security National Detective bureau, which Stute operated. The bureau had 300 clients located throughout the state.

The insurances were ostensibly to cover investigations about bad checks, bad debts and similar matters. Because of the large number of soft drink bar proprietors in the list of clients, the agents are trying to determine whether a good many of Stute's policies carried with them promises of whole or partial immunity in liquor law violations.

More than half of the 50 Minneapolis clients of the agency have been arrested on liquor law violation charges, according to the government agents.

Stute disappeared from the Twin Cities shortly after the charges of bribery were made by Sakolik. O. T. Sunde, federal prohibition agent named by Sakolik as the receiver of another bribe, has been cleared of the charge by the Ramsey county attorney.

BAG BIG GAME IN SOUTH AFRICA

SON OF MR. AND MRS. E. L. KING
SHOT A GIANT RHINO-
CEROS

(By United Press)
New York, May 21.—How their 11-year-old son, Ernest, shot and killed a giant rhinoceros, was told by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King of Winona, on their arrival here from the wilds of Africa.

Ernest, who carried a 30-30 Springfield rifle, also bagged many other of the 400 big game specimens which were brought back for presentation to the university of Minnesota, according to his parents.

Mrs. King, champion marksmen among the women of the northwest, shot several lions.

SUED SCHOOL DISTRICT FOR PERSONAL INJURY

(By United Press)
Duluth, May 21.—Settlement of the suit of Rowan Cowan, 17-year-old Virginia, Minn. student, against his local school district for personal injuries, instituted in district court, was announced today.

Cowan brought suit for $75,000 damages alleging he was injured while riding in a school bus. His father in behalf of the youth today accepted $9,000 in settlement of the claim and it is understood the case will be dropped.

Cowan was injured on January 10th this year and physicians have said he probably will not live more than a month.

WAR DEPT. DOES NOT FAVOR SHIP CANAL DEEPENING

(By United Press)
Duluth, May 21.—The war department has disapproved of petitions asking for deepening of the ship canal between Duluth and Buffalo, according to word received here today.

GREAT NORTHERN TO ENTER BUS TRANSPORTATION

MILLION DOLLAR CORPORATION
IS TO BE FORMED FOR
THE PURPOSE

DOES SO AS A DEFENSIVE MEAS-URE, SAYS PRESIDENT
BUDD

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 21.—The Great Northern railway has definitely taken steps to enter into bus transportation, it was announced here today.

A million dollar corporation is to be formed for the purpose, the announcement said.

Articles of incorporation for the Great Northern Transit Company were filed by the company with Louis Hill, chairman of the board, Ralph Budd, president, W. P. Kenney, vice-president and D. J. Kerr, assistant to the vice-president as officers.

In making the announcement today, Budd said that the Great Northern had no intention of attempting to force any bus company out of business, but described it as a defensive measure in an attempt to stabilize employment in the railway service.

FUNDAMENTALIST- MODERNIST ROW ON

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF PRESBY-
TERIAN CHURCH FACES
OPEN BREACH

(By United Press)
Columbus, May 21.—Facing an open breach over the principles which have given basis to the fundamentalist-modernist controversy, the 137th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in America opened here today.

The leaders declared the present crisis to be the most serious of any since that which split the denominations into north and south during the Civil War, a breach which has never been healed. On one side were the militant fundamentalists led by William Jennings Bryan and bent on throwing out of the church all ministers who declined to subscribe to the old Presbyterian creed, including belief in such Biblical miracles as the changing of water into wine and raising of Lazarus from the dead.

BANKER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

(By United Press)
Hastings, Minn., May 21.—G. M. Hopp, former president of the closed Merchants & Farmers State Bank here was admitted to $5,000 bonds yesterday after pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with receiving funds after the bank became insolvent. The case will be tried during this term of court.

Pageant of Norsemen In Rehearsal Last Night

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, May 21.—Principals in the caste of the "pageant of Norsemen" to be presented at the fairgrounds at the Norse-American Centennial celebration staged a general rehearsal last night. William Dillman, author of the pageant is directing the rehearsal.

ARTHUR LOPEZ- FRAZIER FALLS INTO DEEP FAINT

POLICE AMBULANCE SUMMONED
AND MAN IS RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

FATHER, MOTHER AND TWO SIS-TERS IDENTIFY HIM AS
FRAZIER

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, May 21.—Seeing his mother on the witness stand and hearing her say that he was his "mother's boy" proved too much for the cough-racked body of Arthur Lopez-Frazier in federal court this morning.

He fell in a deep faint, the worst of several that have stricken him during the past week while he has been fighting his case to prove his right to compensation as a war veteran and to establish the fact that he is Arthur Frazier and not Arthur Lopez, a Mexican imposter as the government has charged.

A police ambulance was immediately summoned and Lopez-Frazier was rushed to the hospital where it is believed he will be confined for the remainder of the trial as his condition from advanced stages of pulmonary tuberculosis is becoming critical, physicians stated.

Court was recessed while Mrs. Charles Frazier accompanied him to the hospital and upon her return was re-convened and she resumed her testimony.

Mrs. Frazier told of how she found Arthur after the war was over. The first intimation that her son was not dead, she said, was a newspaper clipping she saw in October, 1923, while she was attending a temperance meeting at Lead, S. D.

The clipping told of a shell-shocked war veteran at Ponca City, Okla., who had lost his memory. She decided to go there to see the boy, she said. Mrs. Frazier testified that the man was Arthur Frazier, her son, and "he knew me right away, although he had not been told I was coming."

"He was always mother's boy," she said. "He was with me more than he was with his father. He used to get in the wood and help me around the house much more than any of the other boys ever did."

When attorneys for the government asked Mrs. Frazier whether she was sure the man was her son, she replied simply:

"A mother knows her child." Several times while Mrs. Frazier was on the stand testifying, large tears trickled down the cheeks of Lopez-Frazier, the first time he has shown any emotion in court since the trial began over a week ago.

Man Who Sued Lillian Gish Is Indicted For Perjury

New York, May 21.—Charles E. Deuel, movie director, was today indicted on three counts of perjury, citing 22 instances, as a result of his recent litigation with Lillian Gish, actress, over her contract with his picture firm.

He was called into court and his bail of $10,000 was reduced to $1,000. The charge was originally preferred when the court in which the breach of contract suit was on trial dismissed the case and ordered Deuel held under charge of perjury on $10,000 bail bond.

HOPP MURDER CASE JURORS DISAGREE

(By United Press)
St. Peter, Minn., May 21.—After deliberating 22 hours, jurors who heard the evidence in the Julius Hopp murder case reported a disagreement and were discharged in district court here yesterday. Hopp, a Nicollet County farmer was charged with killing Louis Willis, another farmer in a pitchfork battle.

OBJECTING TO DEATH
PENALTY

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 21.—The atmosphere charged with rumors of plots and counter-plots to bribe and tamper with jurors and witnesses, 100 new veniremen were called today in attempting to secure a jury to try William D. Shepherd on the charge that he murdered Billy McClintock.

The first panel of 100 prospective jurors neared exhaustion and still no jury was permanently accepted. The second panel was summoned at once in order to prevent delay.

Most of the jurors were dismissed because they had formed opinions to Shepherd's guilt or innocence through the wide publicity given the case. Many others were excused by the state because they objected to giving the death penalty.

Search for Robert White, missing star witness for the prosecution, became intense today. Detectives returned from St. Joseph, Mich., with information that a couple had registered at a hotel there under the names of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Wilson of Topeka, Kansas. They have since left, their destination unknown.

Attorneys said they believed this couple was White and his wife. White and his family disappeared from the hotel here, leaving word they were going away until after the Shepherd trial because they feared violence. Meanwhile, the grand jury was questioning witnesses regarding White's disappearance. Arthur Byrne, said to be an investigator for the defense, was quizzed again today. He was examined first late yesterday.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, directing the grand jury, said that he hoped to have indictments later in the day.

NARCOTIC ADDICTS

BIG INSURANCE BUSINESS WITH BARS REVEALED

POLICIES SUSPECTED TO HAVE PROMISED IMMUNITY FROM
RAIDS

DETECTIVE BUREAU, OPERATED
BY WM. F. STUTE, HAD 300
CLIENTS

St. Paul, May 21.—Records which show that William F. Stute, Jr., did an extensive insurance business with proprietors of soft drink bars were revealed by government investigators today.

The headquarters for Stute's detective bureau are located in Waseca, Minn. According to the records seized its business amounted to about $10,000 last year.

Stute is being sought in an investigation started when John Sakolik, convicted St. Paul bootlegger, declared in Ramsey county court that his insurance policy with Stute carried a promise of immunity from raids by prohibition officers.

The records which the government investigators have obtained cover the transactions of the Security National Detective bureau, which Stute operated. The bureau had 300 clients located throughout the state.

The insurers were ostensibly to cover investigations about bad checks, bad debts and similar matters. Because of the large number of soft drink bar proprietors in the list of clients, the agents are trying to determine whether a good many of Stute's policies carried with them promises of whole or partial immunity in liquor law violations.

More than half of the 50 Minneapolis clients of the agency have been arrested on liquor law violation charges, according to the government agents.

Stute disappeared from the Twin Cities shortly after the charges of bribery were made by Sakolik. O. T. Sundt, federal prohibition agent named by Sakolik as the receiver of another bribe, has been cleared of the charge by the Ramsey county attorney.

BAG BIG GAME
IN SOUTH AFRICA

SON OF MR. AND MRS. E. L. KING
SHOT A GIANT RHINO-
CEROS

(By United Press)
New York, May 21.—How their 11-year-old son, Ernest, shot and killed a giant rhinoceros, was told by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King of Winona, on their arrival here from the wilds of Africa.

Ernest, who carried a 30-30 Springfield rifle, also bagged many other of the 400 big game specimens which were brought back for presentation to the university of Minnesota, according to his parents.

Mrs. King, champion markswoman among the women of the northwest, shot several lions.

SUED SCHOOL DISTRICT FOR PERSONAL INJURY

(By United Press)
Duluth, May 21.—Settlement of the suit of Rowan Cowan, 17-year-old Virginia, Minn. student, against his local school district for personal injuries, instituted in district court, was announced today.

Cowan brought suit for $75,000 damages alleging he was injured while riding in a school bus. His father in behalf of the youth today accepted $9,000 in settlement of the claim and it is understood the case will be dropped.

Cowan was injured on January 10th this year and physicians have said he probably will not live more than a month.

GREAT NORTHERN TO ENTER BUS
TRANSPORTATION

MILLION DOLLAR CORPORATION
IS TO BE FORMED FOR
THE PURPOSE

DOES SO AS A DEFENSIVE MEAS-URE, SAYS PRESIDENT
BUDD

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 21.—The Great Northern railway has definitely taken steps to enter into bus transportation, it was announced here today.

A million dollar corporation is to be formed for the purpose, the announcement said.

Articles of incorporation for the Great Northern Transit Company were filed by the company with Louis Hill, chairman of the board, Ralph Budd, president, W. P. Kenney, vice-president and D. J. Kerr, assistant to the vice-president as officers.

In making the announcement today, Budd said that the Great Northern had no intention of attempting to force any bus company out of business, but described it as a defensive measure in an attempt to stabilize employment in the railway service.

FUNDAMENTALIST-
MODERNIST ROW ON

TERIAN CHURCH FACES
OPEN BREACH

(By United Press)
Columbus, May 21.—Facing an open breach over the principles which have given basis to the fundamentalist-modernist controversy, the 137th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in America opened here today.

The leaders declared the present crisis to be the most serious of any since that which split the denominations into north and south during the Civil War, a breach which has never been healed. On one side were the militant fundamentalists led by William Jennings Bryan and bent on throwing out of the church all ministers who declined to subscribe to the old Presbyterian creed, including belief in such Biblical miracles as the changing of water into wine and raising of Lazarus from the dead.

BANKER PLEADS
NOT GUILTY

(By United Press)
Hastings, Minn., May 21.—G. M. Hopp, former president of the closed Merchants & Farmers State Bank here was admitted to $5,000 bonds yesterday after pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with receiving funds after the bank became insolvent. The case will be tried during this term of court.

Pageant of Norsemen
In Rehearsal Last Night

(By United Press)

ARTHUR LOPEZ-
FRAZIER FALLS
INTO DEEP FAINT

POLICE AMBULANCE SUMMONED
AND MAN IS RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

FATHER, MOTHER AND TWO SIS-TERS IDENTIFY HIM AS
FRAZIER

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, May 21.—Seeing his mother on the witness stand and hearing her say that he was his "mother's boy" proved too much for the cough-racked body of Arthur Lopez-Frazier in federal court this morning.

He fell in a deep faint, the worst of several that have stricken him during the past week while he has been fighting his case to prove his right to compensation as a war veteran and to establish the fact that he is Arthur Frazier and not Arthur Lopez, a Mexican impostor as the government has charged.

A police ambulance was immediately summoned and Lopez-Frazier was rushed to the hospital where it is believed he will be confined for the remainder of the trial as his condition from advanced stages of pulmonary tuberculosis is becoming critical, physicians stated.

Court was recessed while Mrs. Charles Frazier accompanied him to the hospital and upon her return was re-convened and she resumed her testimony.

Mrs. Frazier told of how she found Arthur after the war was over. The first intimation that her son was not dead, she said, was a newspaper clipping she saw in October, 1923, while she was attending a temperance meeting at Lead, S. D.

The clipping told of a shell-shocked war veteran at Ponca City, Okla., who had lost his memory. She decided to go there to see the boy, she said. Mrs. Frazier testified that the man was Arthur Frazier, her son, and "he knew me right away, although he had not been told I was coming."

"He was always mother's boy," she said. "He was with me more than he was with his father. He used to get in the wood and help me around the house much more than any of the other boys ever did."

When attorneys for the government asked Mrs. Frazier whether she was sure the man was her son, she replied simply:

"A mother knows her child." Several times while Mrs. Frazier was on the stand testifying, large tears trickled down the cheeks of Lopez-Frazier, the first time he has shown any emotion in court since the trial began over a week ago.

Man Who Sued Lillian Gish
Is Indicted For Perjury

New York, May 21.—Charles E. Deuel, movie director, was today indicted on three counts of perjury, citing 22 instances, as a result of his recent litigation with Lillian Gish, actress, over her contract with his picture firm.

He was called into court and his bail of $10,000 was reduced to $1,000. The charge was originally preferred when the court in which the breach of contract suit was on trial dismissed the case and ordered Deuel held under charge of perjury on $10,000 bail bond.

HOPP MURDER CASE
JURORS DISAGREE

(By United Press)
St. Peter, Minn., May 21.—After deliberating 22 hours, jurors who heard the evidence in the Julius Hopp murder case reported a disagreement and were discharged in district court here yesterday. Hopp, a Nicollet County farmer was charged with killing Louis Wills, another farmer in a pitchfork battle.

We have other Pennsylvania tires, too—a tread and price for every taste.

You wouldn't let your motor run ten seconds—without lubrication. Friction would ruin it in ten seconds. Likewise, over a longer period of time, Friction would ruin it—if you neglected to use only high quality lubricating oil. Nocolene motor oil in your crankcase stands between your motor, and the repair man. You will feel its rich lubricating quality in your grateful motor's smooth and powerful response.

Use Nocolene "F" for Fords.

PEACH SHADES POPULAR

Also Orchid and Flesh Tints Revealed in Radium Silks, Etc., at Michael's Tonight

The H. P. Michael Company has certainly created a great interest among the women of Brainerd by the curtaining of its windows. Even the Dispatch man had his curiosity aroused as he saw the unusual sight of all the windows screened and heard the speculations of ladies passing by as to all of the pretty things to be seen when the windows are unveiled this evening.

It is difficult to give a description of the daintiness that is displayed in these windows. It is prophesied that all will be impressed by the beauty of the colorings and the daintiness of materials and styles of garments.

One window is trimmed exclusively in peach shades. Another contains orchid and flesh tints exclusively. In each one the colorings seem almost unreal, they are so delicate and delightfully pretty.

Perhaps crepes and fine radium silks reflect these shades better than other weaves of silk. It is impossible to give a description of the daintiness of the combinations of fine silks and gorges, with dainty lace and a little hand embroidery here, a small piece of well matched ribbon there—everything in designs which are most compelling.

If women love the beautiful, they surely will find a great pleasure in viewing these windows when the curtains are removed at 7:30 tonight. They can then judge for themselves whether or not this article is over-enthusiastic in its description of all of the feminine loveliness that will be displayed.

The windows have been trimmed by Mrs. J. E. Michael, who has put a great deal of time and effort on this work and deserves a great deal of credit for the artistic effects that have been obtained.

KAPPA DELPHIANS

Miss LeMay Led in the Discussion Last Night on "Social Life of Rome" (Contributed)

The Kappa Delphian chapter held its regular meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. C. D. McKay.

Miss LeMay led in the discussion of the Social Life of Rome. The text had been so well read by all the members present that two absentees on the program did not interrupt the trend of thought covering this part of early Roman history. This is as it should be. But 1500 pages of reading matter covering ancient history is considerable for home-makers and business and professional women to cover in ten months of study. The chapter members who have covered the text feel well repaid for their efforts. Several have already expressed a desire to cover this history again six years from now when the world would start over again. Excavations are ever bringing to light new and interesting data concerning people of the long ago.

A quotation from Miss Grewox's speech concerning the wearing apparel of the early Romans, "Cotton was known as was silk in the later periods. However, because it was so filmy and transparent, silk was not serviceable for clothing, and it was forbidden for public wear."

Mrs. A. K. Cohen insisted that all the Romans had plenty of pure water piped into their homes and that wine was not necessary.

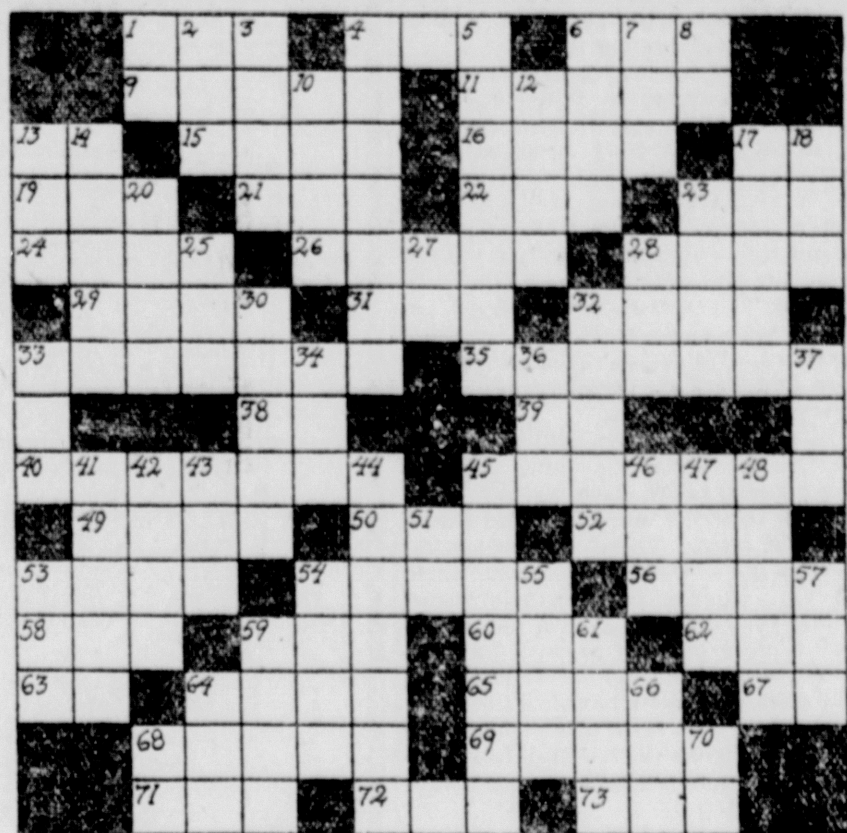

The next chapter meeting will be held June 9, at the home of Mrs. Walter Murphy, West Kingwood.

Mrs. Lammon will lead in the resume of human progress—a program will appear later.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

"LIFE'S GREATEST GAME"

Friday is "Joe Bush Day" at Lyceum Theatre, Auspices Athletic Park Committee

Friday is "Joe Bush Day" at the Lyceum theatre, where the feature baseball picture, "Life's Greatest Game" will be given its last showing under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce athletic park committee. Local fans will be interested in the film that shows the 1924 world series, with the Giants and Senators in action at the Polo grounds in New York.

From the world's champion down through the long list of professional baseball clubs, semi-pro nines, industrial diamond outfits, commercial teams and the great mass of college and high school ball clubs, every member of every one of these clubs will thrill when they see "Life's Greatest Game," for it is their picture.

Briefly, the story deals with a father, who, through domestic misunderstandings, has not seen his son for nearly 20 years. He is the manager of one of the world's series contenders, and was formerly star pitcher. In the dramatic setting of a world's series contest he finds that the rookie pitcher he has picked up not only bears his own name but is his own son.

But "Life's Greatest Game" does not contain the mistake of being a baseball story alone. Rather, its appeal is broad, human, universal. No technical knowledge baseball is necessary to appreciate the picture. All will find it intensely interesting, one that will leave pleasant memories for many a day.

The funds realized from this picture will be used in making a number of needed improvements in Brainerd's new athletic park.

Surprise Party

Mrs. R. Hodge was pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Peter Peterson, where a number of friends and neighbors had gathered, it being Mrs. Hodge's birthday.

Games were enjoyed, after which all partook of a dainty luncheon. The guest of honor was presented with a beautiful pair of pillow slips.

Those present were Mesdames Gatten, Hess, Regan, Brennan, Hogan, Andrew Englund, A. Englund, Varner, Jenkins, McQuillen, Belmuth, Stallman and Peterson.

The party broke up at a late hour, all wishing Mrs. Hodge many happy returns of the day.

Reception at Church

The members of St. Paul's Episcopal church will give a reception on Friday evening, May 22nd, at 8 o'clock, in the basement of the church, for Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Cocks and family, who leave soon for their new home in California.

All members of the church and friends are invited to be present.

Banking for the People

COPYRIGHT 1924 HARVEY BLODGETT

How Bank Credit Is Used

THE economy, energy, and industry of a community are translated into figures in the form of bank deposits.

As all depositors never require their funds simultaneously, this aggregate of unused surplus becomes a great public utility—the reserve from which credit is supplied to production and industry.

This reservoir is drawn upon, properly, for the purpose of increasing the volume of business and for making profits.

Proper uses of bank credit are to purchase raw materials, to turn them into finished products, to raise farm products and to distribute such products.

A goodly proportion of such loans is absorbed in wages.

Banks, in thus distributing community funds, for which they are trustees, cannot take risks.

If a person through mismanagement, unwise expenditures, or extravagance over-extends and becomes hard pressed it is not the bank's function to relieve his embarrassment.

Banks do not encourage loans for the purchase of luxuries, nor for mere pleasure-giving objects. A dollar allotted by a bank for this purpose is a dollar taken from legitimate commercial channels.

Banks discountance loans for speculation. By no process of reasoning could such a loan redound to community benefit.

A commercial bank does not make loans for building factories or warehouses. Such long-time loans are funded through mortgages or bonds.

Banks cannot make "capital" loans. A contribution to capital is a permanent credit, a "frozen" asset. Fundamentally, bank loans must be liquid in their nature.

The proper use of credit is to help business men and farmers develop their opportunities.

The ideal credit relation at the bank is to borrow at seasons and "clean up" periodically.

The money a bank lends today is surplus belonging to depositors who may require loans at other periods.

Bank credit is the greatest equalizer of business.

Banks discountance loans for speculation. By no process of reasoning could such a loan redound to community benefit.

A commercial bank does not make loans for building factories or warehouses. Such long-time loans are funded through mortgages or bonds.

Banks cannot make "capital" loans. A contribution to capital is a permanent credit, a "frozen" asset. Fundamentally, bank loans must be liquid in their nature.

The proper use of credit is to help business men and farmers develop their opportunities.

The ideal credit relation at the bank is to borrow at seasons and "clean up" periodically.

The money a bank lends today is surplus belonging to depositors who may require loans at other periods.

Bank credit is the greatest equalizer of business.

DECLARE IT'S NOT A BOOM

IN a recent issue, the Miami, Florida, Herald, takes the Minneapolis Journal to task and the Florida paper declares the state is not having a boom, and that it just dreads such a possibility as a boom.

Says the Herald: "In characterizing the splendid progress made in Florida in recent years as a feverish boom, the Journal shows that it is not familiar with conditions in Florida."

As a matter of fact, Florida has only been discovered a very short time. For years the state has been preparing for what is now occurring. Much preliminary pioneer work has been done and when ready, the state began to advertise its advantages of soil and climate and in response to that has come this great influx of population demanding homes and farms, and places in which to do business. That demand has not been supplied as yet. Meanwhile men of millions have discovered that Florida, Miami especially, offers them the finest place as a winter residence that can be found anywhere, and they are taking advantage of the opportunities.

All this has created a great demand for real estate. But it is not strictly a boom. The fear of Florida, concludes the Miami Herald, is that it may develop into one.

It is worth noting, in reading the Florida paper's position, that the state began prospering when its campaign of advertising was presented to the world. The rarest flower will blush unseen unless its presence is broadcast. The days of building mouse-traps, really excellent ones, with the factory located in the woods and the public, of its own accord, discovering such super-excellence and of its own accord wearing a path to the secluded manufacturing institution—those days of merchandising are gone. If you have anything of merit these days, whether it's California sunshine or Florida climate and soil, it must be advertised to reach the great mass of the people. Printer's ink has had a great deal to do in the advancement of Florida. The advertising has ranged from newspapers and magazines to beautifully colored literature, and it has been placed at most opportune times.

As to whether Florida is really enjoying a boom, we leave it to our Brainerd colony that visited the state last winter. In Miami they found the real estate market so active that many real estate men and bankers hesitated to place valuations on certain properties, because they were recording the most unusual advances.

PUBLIC SHOULD BE REPRESENTED

THE public, which is very largely interested and which has been invited, should be represented at the hearing of the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission, to be held Friday, May 29, at the State Capitol in St. Paul, taking up safety provisions at railway crossings.

In formal language, the secretary of the commission, Thomas Yapp, states that "at the session of 1925, the Legislature for the state of Minnesota, passed House File No. 478, being 'An Act to be enforced from and after its passage,' which provides for the manner of constructing highway crossings on railroads, and for the construction and maintenance of certain signs at the crossings of railroads, streets and public highways, and regulating the use of such crossings by the public and for the establishment, vacation and re-location of such crossings, and for additional safeguards at dangerous grade crossings, and providing penalties."

The meeting is called so that the public, the state highway commission and railroad companies may discuss the matter with the railroad and warehouse commission and carry out the directions of the legislature.

The growing number of crossing accidents makes it necessary to enforce highway crossing regulations and rules. The accident at Aitkin Saturday night where one man was killed and four injured is an example of lax action on the part of automobile drivers in observing the simplest of crossing rules. The old railroad adage of "Stop, Look and Listen" is probably never observed by the majority of automobile drivers. We do not refer to the bus drivers, who bring their busses to a full stop and then scan the tracks before crossing.

Brainerd has had several crossing accidents fatal in their nature. In one a woman was killed and in another two men lost their lives.

The highway department in laying out its trunk roads is endeavoring in every way possible to avoid unnecessary crossing of tracks. For instance the new route of Trunk Highway No. 27 from Belle Prairie to Brainerd will continue on the west side of the Northern Pacific tracks and avoid any crossings. At present the highway makes two crossings at Crow Wing postoffice, one of which, being a short double turn like a "Z", is particularly dangerous to fast drivers at night making their first run in that section.

EXTENSION OF RURAL ROUTES

THAT Crow Wing county is gaining in population, that advantages of the rural routes are being extended, and that the local postmaster, Carl Adams, and Congressman Harold Knutson, are working for such extension and having success crown their efforts, is noted in a communication from the postoffice department at Washington, which states that Route No. 3, which passes through South Long Lake territory, is to be materially extended.

The petition has been allowed and under orders effective June 16, the change will be made. Eleven families are afforded improved mail facilities. Among those benefited are John A. Carlson, G. E. Burrows, Andrew Liden and W. M. Richards.

USE DISCRETION

IN carrying out a broad program of traffic law enforcement, we would suggest that discretion be used. If some farmer's or tourist's tail light does not function, call it to his attention, direct him to a garage for repairs. Give him a chance to "make good."

If we "land heavily" on the farmers and tourists, they may retaliate by avoiding Brainerd entirely.

THE Yankees are giving a perfect example of an effective bust. Their opponents claim that when the pitching is good, the Yankees cannot get runs. When the Yankees have a batting streak, the pitching is flat, and when both pitching and batting is gilt edge, then the fielders go up in the air.

Hard to Find Anything That Really Is "New"

The principle of the rotorship, the most sensational of recent inventions, is acknowledged by its inventor to be based upon an invention of Doctor Magnus, made no less than seventy-five years ago.

Of all proverbs there is perhaps none truer than that there is "nothing new under the sun," and the more you study the history of inventions the more deeply you become convinced of its verity.

Take, for instance, wireless. So long ago as 1842 Professor Morse sent signals across the Susquehanna river merely by means of wires stretched along the banks.

Twelve years later, in 1854, that amazing Scot, James Lindsay, read a paper before the British association in which he boldly stated that if wires were run along the coasts of America and Britain, and properly charged, he could send messages across the Atlantic.

Penny-in-the-slot machines were used in the London coffee houses so long ago as 1829. They were in the shape of a tobacco-jar, which stood upon a table and had a slot in which a penny had to be inserted in order to obtain a pipeful of tobacco. Exactly as in the modern machine, the weight of the coin depressed a lever and released a lock.

The motor car, too, is much more ancient than most of us think, for the first automobile constructed by Cugnot, in 1769, is still on view in a Paris museum. By 1835 numbers of mechanically propelled vehicles were moving upon English roads. In the "Erin," a motor coach of that date, twenty people traveled comfortably.

Four years earlier, in 1831, a horseless coach, constructed by Lance, piloted regularly between Cheltenham and Gloucester. It covered in all nearly four thousand miles, and carried three thousand passengers at an average speed of twelve miles an hour.

A submarine boat was exhibited in the Thames in the year 1825, and Fulton, the American inventor, built one for Napoleon.

Even the typewriter is a great deal older than most of us imagine, for there is a record of an application for a patent for a machine of this kind in the same year that Queen Anne died.

The Extreme Edge

"Eleanor could be happy with anybody," said Henry, "only she must have sympathy."

"Diana blinked. 'She appeals to you very strongly, it appears.'"

"All her sex appeal to me very strongly," said Henry. "You see, I travel along the extreme edge of the straight and narrow, so most of the women I run up against are like myself—on the right track, but only just, and liable to wobble off. Awfully nice people, you know."

"Diana smiled with tight lips."

"Don't you think that if you went along the middle of the road you'd meet nicer ones still?" she asked.

"Oh, nicest, I suppose, yes," said Henry, with a little sigh, "but for good company, give me the edge."—From "Mischief," by Ben Travers.

All Dieters Blackballed

The "Club de Cent Kilos" is not one of the most exclusive clubs in Paris. The only condition an individual has to fulfill to be permitted to join it is to weigh more than 200 pounds. There are several hundred members, who meet every month in a well-known restaurant, which closes its doors for the day to other patrons, a "sacrifice," it is said, which the proprietor is glad enough to make. The members come from all walks of life. There are distinguished actors like Drumen; celebrated writers like Robert de Flers and Pierre Benoit; taxi drivers, four senators, a field marshal and a leading member of the French Communist party.

Aerial Guide Book

The first "Air Baedeker," or hand-book for air traffic has been issued by a Munich publisher. Postmaster Stephan introduces the book with a statement of present conditions of aviation in Germany. International airplane companies contribute interesting details of their plans and there is information about available landing fields and air harbors. There are discussions of the political conditions necessary to stimulate air traffic, an article on the administration of air companies and many statistics and maps. The writer makes the statement that travel by air is not only the quickest but the safest means of traffic existing today.

Many Sightless

The latest available figures show a total of 52,567 blind persons in the United States, of whom 30,100 were males and 22,467 females. Of this number 45,737 were white, 6,392 negroes and 438 Indians, and 40 Chinese and Japanese. These figures relate only to the enumerated blind, but the census bureau estimates the actual number at 75,000 to 76,000 in 1920, an advance over the estimated number in 1910 of about 5,000.

"Radioed" Message

An up-to-date way of informing the teacher of an enforced absence from a class session at White Plains (N. Y.), high school was used by William Meyers. He radioed that he would be absent. He went to the home of a neighbor and used his sending station, 2-BQB, to tell the head of the science department that he could not attend school. The message was received on the school sending and receiving station.

Phrases That Can Be Construed as Comic

Have you ever noticed how difficult it is to find expressions to emphasize the meaning of what we wish to convey? There certainly must be a patency, or shortage of words in our language, because we have a knack of saying, often with the most mournful faces, very comic things.

How fond we are of ill-treating our eyes; in fact, these valuable organs are about the worst treated a person has. We often rivet them on some striking object, a toad, or the horns of a bull. Sometimes they are fixed on a picture or the landscape. At times they are dropped, and very often kept on the ground. Again, they are rolled in surprise, and sweeping a room with them is quite a common practice. We fasten them, too, on the fire, and there are occasions when they swim in tears.

A man's countenance will fall, or his jaw drop. When something very extraordinary takes place we have been known to wring our hands and throw up our arms. There are people remarkably skilled in knitting their brows. Rude girls toss their heads, while you, perhaps, keep a dog which has a nasty habit of pricking its ears.

There was the gallant Horatius of the good old days who asked his countrymen to stand on either hand and keep the bridge with him. It is bad enough, we think, to have one's toes trodden on.

Have you heard of the piercing cry which rent the air? Have you seen a woman rooted to the spot? Have you seen any one throw up his head?

Charles Dickens had a keen ear for the ridiculous things people say sometimes. In the Pickwick Papers, when Mr. John Smucker requests Mr. Weller to take his arm, Sam replies—"Thankee, sir. You're wery good, but I won't deprive you of it."

Mark Antony was occasionally "strung up" for a word. He passionately beseeches his countrymen, during an appeal over Caesar's corpse, to lend him their ears.

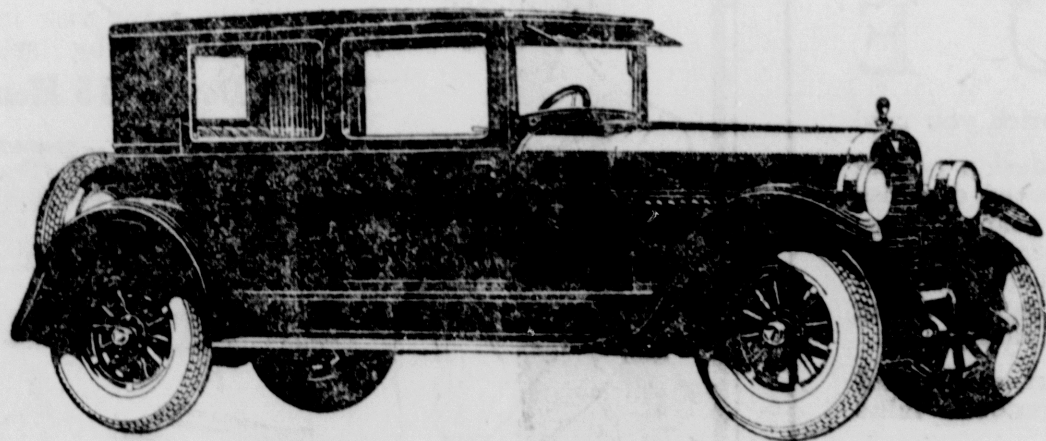

Have you ever heard of lame ideas? Or perhaps you have heard of them striking? One often hears of people with their minds unhinged. We have heard of a boy who asked his teacher to excuse the noisiness of the class because his teeth would chatter.—Montreal Family Herald.

COUNTY COMMITTEES AID FUND CAMPAIGN

SUPPORT GIVEN TO WORK OF COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURE BY FARMERS

The campaign being sponsored by the Minnesota Farm Bureau, and in which it is being joined by other state agricultural and business men's organizations, to raise $4,000 to pay the state quota toward the work of the American Council of Agriculture is meeting with success, according to a report made to the joint state committee in charge of the campaign by P. A. Egeland, acting secretary, at the close of the past week.

Sub-quotas ranging from $50 to $125 had been assigned 77 of the 85 counties of the state and committees named to have charge of raising the amount in each county. In the majority of counties these committees have included one farm bureau representative, one representative of other county farm organizations, and one town business man, and according to Mr. Egeland's report these were taking hold in nearly all counties to which quotas had been assigned.

Reports had been received from 24 counties of their quotas having been secured or work in progress and the full amount assured. Information from a number of others was to the effect that the request of the state committee was to come before the executive committees of various county organizations by whom favorable action was expected.

The American Council of Agriculture was organized last July by a number of national and state farm organizations to carry on the campaign to secure for agriculture the benefits of the American protective system and thus place it upon an equality with industry and labor. The fund being jointly raised by the Minnesota organizations is to pay the state's contribution toward carrying on that work.

BRINGS BLAZE TO FIRE STATION TO QUENCH IT

St. Paul, May 21.—Like Mahomet, O. T. Gates, 565 Mendota sts., believes in compromising, even unto the last mountain.

When Mr. Gates' coupe caught fire at 3rd and Minnesota sts. about 5:40 p. m. Tuesday he realized it would take longer to bring the fire apparatus to the fire than to take the fire to the apparatus.

So, with horn tooting and flames streaming out of the car, like the tail of a comet, he raced up Minnesota st. to 8th st., and into the engine house.

"Hey," he yelled. "Here's a fire." Fifty blue-clad smoke-eaters, headed by none other than Owen Dunn, "the big chief," surrounded the car and literally smothered the flames.

The loss was nominal. It's that kind of a car.

WOOL ASSOCIATION EXPECTS BIG POOL

CO-OP. AGENCY TO HANDLE DOUB- LE AMOUNT OF OTHER YEARS, INDICATED

The Minnesota Cooperative Wool Growers Association, which was re-organized under the Minnesota standard cooperative law sometime ago, expects to handle at least double the amount of wool this year that it received in other seasons.

A Farm Bureau representative visited the association's headquarters at Wabasha during the past week and found the workings of the association extremely interesting, as shown and explained by President Alex Huddleston and General Manager R. E. Jones.

Up to May 6th 461 growers had signed contracts to pool their wool through the association for a five year period with the privilege of cancellation each year. The association has sent out to growers fully twice as many wool sacks as a year ago and the sacks are going out each day, a significant indication that this year's pool through the association will double that of last year and perhaps run far above that amount. About 9,000 lbs. of the new clip wool had already been received at the Wabasha warehouses. The total pool last year was about 280,000 lbs.

The wool market has been steadily declining ever since February, according to General Manager Jones, with indications that it has now struck bottom. Eastern demand is not in evidence, however, and there will be no snap to the market until Eastern manufacturers are in evidence for supplies.

"It is no time for the grower to sell his wool during a depression such as we are now having," says Mr. Jones. "The cash advances of our cooperative association enables the grower to have his wool held during depressions like the present. It is our policy to hold all wools until there is a satisfactory demand and satisfactory prices are obtainable."

AMUSEMENTS

"Life's Greatest Game"

A tremendously vivid portrayal of the sinking of the Titanic, with all the terrific thrills and heroic deeds which that great maritime tragedy involved, will be presented at the Lyceum Theatre tonight and Friday when Emory Johnson's great melodrama, "Life's Greatest Game," is begun. The picture has the characteristic touch of this popular young producer-director, and his mother, Emilie Johnson, author of this story as of all his previous successes. The Titanic disaster is woven logically and interestingly into a human interest story which is typical of Mrs. Johnson's work; and the background of this thrilling tale is the great national game of baseball. Dedicated to the local club and shown under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce Athletic committee, the production is unquestionably one of the most absorbing documents of life in the raw which has ever been turned out. Johnnie Walker is the principal star of the picture, supported by such able thespians as Thomas Santachi, Gertrude Olmsted, Jane Thomas, Dave Kirby and Dickie Brandon.

Bebe Scores Hit as Comedienne in "Miss Bluebeard"

Bebe Daniels comes to the New Park tonight and Friday as the star of the Paramount picture, "Miss Bluebeard," directed by Frank Tuttle—a picturization of the Broadway stage play, "Little Miss Bluebeard," by Avery Hopwood.

The screen play, by Townsend Martin, deals with a series of matrimonial adventures and gives Miss Daniels a fine opportunity to display her talents as a comedienne.

Bebe's role in the picture is one of a French actress. She goes to London on a holiday and, through a series of most amusing incidents en route, she arrives there the wife of two men.

"Peaches" and Wanderlust

By ROSCOE G. SCOTT

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

SALLIE WAINCOTT came up to Washington first.

That was just after the war-time crush at the Capitol. Now, after her "boss" had been transferred from the veteran's bureau to field work, Sallie wouldn't remain. Nobody else, she declared, understood her lazy Southern drawl; nobody else would be so patient with her blunders.

The wanderlust was upon her. She wanted to move about and her eighteen hundred had meant a yearly saving of five of it.

After two months of office work in Detroit she took the night boat for Buffalo. "This 'Capitol of Eastern New York' extended a placid welcome. 'Peaches' loved Buffalo from the start. But she did not go to work. It was too much fun to play—with a mammoth lake right in one's front yard!

One night the landlady's son came to visit. Peaches hated him at once. He was a New Yorker. One gathered from casual remarks he made at the boarding table that he knew everybody who really counted and had had seen everything worth while—that is—on Broadway. He knew the fellow—Anderson—who produced it. He called Miss Pennington "Ann." She was to star.

Peaches enjoyed the fanciful little thing; she really liked the way she was treated to taxi rides instead of the lowly street car; she liked the cozy little hour afterward in the cafe and the manner of ease which her escort used. But she hated her escort. He was so—well, one must hurry back to her one word—"tacky."

The next day she sought a job. Why, nobody could have guessed. Certainly not Peaches. She was gone all day and got home to find a note under her door from the New Yorker chiding her for her rank behavior in leaving him so utterly alone. The next day she left before breakfast.

You and I know that Peaches had fallen in love, and we know with whom. But Peaches did not know. And she took a job—at twelve dollars a week for a start—when she had commanded nearly forty! In fact, she stuck to it nobly until Sunday.

Sunday she arose very early, although her Sunday sleep had always been her real luxury. She must get away somewhere, anywhere lest she should see him, do something really rude like box his ears or call him "tacky."

She followed the crowd by impulse and the street cars carried her to Niagara. In early afternoon she came back. Luckily everybody else was away.

Down below her whirled the automobiles. Nearly every other machine carried persons in the front seat. Their merry laughter told the tale all too publicly.

She must get away from the sight of those machines. She had been weeks on the Trail of the Honey-mooners. They all made her ill. They were too giddy, unreasonably happy. Mush!

She started for a long walk—oh, anywhere away from the path of the giddy lovers.

The landlady's son blocked her at the outer doorway.

"No good, Miss—oh, you know your name. You're going to sit here and talk to me. You are going to know what little there is to know about me. You are going to tell me all about yourself and how they came to call you Peaches. You are going to tell me how well you like this Buffalo and why you came and—"

She flared.

"You are no Southern gentleman or you would not insult me this way. You think I am impressed by your New York swagger an' you all—you all are nothing—but—but tacky!"

With the blow she finished crimson of face.

But his audacity was not over. He moved closer to her. He even dared to take hold of her two pretty shoulders.

"By gosh, now I like you better than any time before! I loved your drawl and your evident good-breeding—and oh, my word, but you have a temper. I've always said I'd never marry except I found some where a—"

She broke away from him.

"You're a plain tacky!" she almost screamed.

But he gently brought her back to a place beside him on the davenport. "Well, you win, Peaches. Just as well start calling you that now as later. You win! To tell the whole truth, I've been sort of a loafer. Never got right down and made much of myself. Probably because I was as you said—'tacky.' Mother wrote me that she knew somebody who could steady me, train me, build me into a real decent chap. So I came out."

The new manner of southern hospitality changed the crimson of anger to one of humility.

"An' heah I was all time runnin' off from you-all! That was tacky, sah, of me."

At the end of many days of comradeship that began at the closing hours of hard clerical work, Peaches gave in and promised everything.

Her written explanation to the folks in Birmingham follows:

"It was just the effect, I reckon, of being so near Niagara and all the honeymooners. But Mr. Dick—why, I have been wondering how long I got along without him—and Buffalo!"

To Choose Colors That Flatter You

Analyze Complexion Before Selecting Apparel and Save Much Grief.

Never before has color played so important a part in the wardrobe, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star. The tendency of all ages to choose the hues of the rainbow has brought beauty to some and grief to many. Many a woman who has worn black-and-white or navy blue with distinction is encouraged to indulge in her fancy in one of the vivid tones only to destroy completely her distinction of being well-dressed.

There are many colors for every woman if she will choose carefully by analyzing her own color tones and studying the effect of the various shades on her complexion. Not for everyone is the natural shade of kasha. The definite type with dark hair and clear skin looks smart in the neutral tones. But the sallow-skinned or drab-haired becomes lifeless-looking in this colorless gray regardless of the smartness of the shade. There are tones that carry tints of rose and blue and green that may be used to reflect color into the face and give the garment character even on this type of wearer.

Blue has long been a favorite with discriminating women who know it in this navy shade to be most becoming and serviceable. The lighter shades may sallow the skin, and the vivid, bright blues lighten pale eyes. The grayed tones, periwinkle, periwinkle, corn flower, are the ideal choice of the blonde with clear skin. The brunette whose skin is not on the olive cast may wear it, but it is not her best choice to develop her best coloring.

Asches of roses, which the French have favored for some time, is coming to us in the facing on the brims of the large hats, in neckwear, and even for some entire frocks.

The browns, which apparently are of never-ending popularity, need care in their selection. Nothing is more pathetic than a drab or dark-skinned woman in a warm brown. Cigarette, Havana, beige, thrush, hazel all have warm tones and are best worn by the pale brunette. The soft tans, light browns, fawns are equally good for blonde or brunette with clear skin.

Yellow is to repeat its success of last summer. While it is artistic in combination with the white attire of summer, its popularity, more likely, is due to the fact that there is a shade of yellow to flatter every complexion. For the brunette yellow is especially suitable. The blonde must wear it with discrimination as certain yellow imparts a violet cast to the skin. The cold shades, citron, olive and lemon are for the brunette, and the ash blonde will look her fairest blondness in the faint yellows. Orange is difficult to wear and is so vivid that it is most attractive when used only for contrast. Some brunettes find it whitens their skin. Apricot, not so daring a shade, may be worn either by the fair or dark-haired.

Thistlebloom, another of the season's favored colors, is a flattering choice for the woman who finds the neutral shades, the warm browns and the blues unsuited to her coloring. It is a rose orchid that freshens the color of the skin and may safely be worn by those to whom lavender is impossible. For the dull-haired type it is a salvation.

Green, always good for spring and summer, should be chosen with considerable thought. The blonde may look cheap in the wrong shade, the brunette with sallow skin may take on a greenish cast and the blue-eyed woman become a green-eyed monster, while the Titian-haired girl with ruddy color needs the slate tone. Chosen thoughtfully green is a flattering color that practically every type may wear.

Tailored Detail Shown in This Out-Door Frock

Perfection in tailored detail is pronounced in this very attractive outdoor frock which may be developed in any of the seasonable materials.

The Home Garden

What is Home Without a Garden?

Be a Vegetable Specialist

Not all people like the same vegetables so it is a waste of time and space to grow vegetables for which you do not care. Devote your garden to those that you like most and specialize in these. Suppose green peas are your favorite "garden sass." There is a great list from which to choose and during the pea season you might grow five or six varieties, testing out new kinds that you have never grown or seen. You will find some revelations in the newer peas.

Asparagus lovers will want a large asparagus bed than they will string beans, for instance. For one who likes asparagus almost daily while it is in season, a good-sized patch is necessary. For your garden space to your appetite.

Sweet corn is a special favorite with almost every one and here is a chance for experiment and prolonging the season by devoting the greater portion of the garden patch to various sweet corns, planting at intervals and planting early and late varieties at the same time. Now is a good time to start with the first planting of sweet corn, using one of the earliest kinds, such as Malakoff, Golden Bantam or other standard types. Nearly every gardener will have Golden Bantam. It has taken such a strong hold that it would take years for another variety to supplant it.

String beans are one of the easiest of garden crops to grow. You can try bush and pole varieties, green and wax podded and have a special bean garden if this appeals to you.

The salad garden offers an opportunity for ingenuity to keep the salad material going from spring until fall with a succession of lettuce, endive, tomatoes, green peppers, cress, corn salad, and cucumbers for the latter part of the season. Many gardeners specialize heavily in tomatoes for canning material as well as for catsup, chili sauces and various pickles and besides there is always a ready market for any surplus. Select a garden feature and develop it.

SCHOLARSHIP PRIZE OFFERED IN JOURNALISM

For the first time in its history, the department of journalism at the University of Minnesota has received a scholarship prize gift to be awarded to one of its students. A scholarship of $100 a year to be known as the "E. J. Stillwell Journalism Scholarship" has been donated by L. R. Boswell of Minneapolis, who specified that the president of the Minnesota Editorial Association should be one of the committee formulating the terms of award and selecting the recipient.

President H. Z. Mitchell, together with R. R. Barlow, head of the department of journalism, Dean J. M. Thomas, and T. E. Steward decided as a basis of award that the money should go to "the student who in the judgment of the committee has written the paper of most practical value to members of the Minnesota Editorial Association."

Mr. Boswell, who is vice president of the Minneapolis Paper Co., has agreed to continue the gift for at least three years. Many students in advanced journalism courses are expected to enter competition for the award, according to Professor Barlow. He expects particularly good results from members of a course which is devoted to journalistic research.

"Peaches" and Wanderlust

By ROSCOE G. SCOTT

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

SALLIE WAINCOTT came up to Washington first.

That was just after the war-time crush at the Capitol. Now, after her "boss" had been transferred from the veteran's bureau to field work, Sallie wouldn't remain. Nobody else, she declared, understood her lazy Southern drawl; nobody else would be so patient with her blunders.

The wanderlust was upon her. She wanted to move about and her eighteen hundred had meant a yearly saving of five of it.

After two months of office work in Detroit she took the night boat for Buffalo. "This 'Capitol of Eastern New York' extended a placid welcome. 'Peaches' loved Buffalo from the start. But she did not go to work. It was too much fun to play—with a mammoth lake right in one's front yard!

One night the landlady's son came to visit. Peaches hated him at once. He was a New Yorker. One gathered from casual remarks he made at the boarding table that he knew everybody who really counted and had had seen everything worth while—that is—on Broadway. He knew the fellow—Anderson—who produced it. He called Miss Pennington "Ann." She was to star.

Peaches enjoyed the fanciful little thing; she really liked the way she was treated to taxi rides instead of the lowly street car; she liked the cozy little hour afterward in the cafe and the manner of ease which her escort used. But she hated her escort. He was so—well, one must hurry back to her one word—"tacky."

The next day she sought a job. Why, nobody could have guessed. Certainly not Peaches. She was gone all day and got home to find a note under her door from the New Yorker chiding her for her rank behavior in leaving him so utterly alone. The next day she left before breakfast.

You and I know that Peaches had fallen in love, and we know with whom. But Peaches did not know. And she took a job—at twelve dollars a week for a start—when she had commanded nearly forty! In fact, she stuck to it nobly until Sunday.

Sunday she arose very early, although her Sunday sleep had always been her real luxury. She must get away somewhere, anywhere lest she should see him, do something really rude like box his ears or call him "tacky."

She followed the crowd by impulse and the street cars carried her to Niagara. In early afternoon she came back. Luckily everybody else was away.

Down below her whirled the automobiles. Nearly every other machine carried persons in the front seat. Their merry laughter told the tale all too publicly.

She must get away from the sight of those machines. She had been weeks on the Trail of the Honey-mooners. They all made her ill. They were too giddily, unreasonably happy. Mush!

She started for a long walk—oh, anywhere away from the path of the giddy lovers.

The landlady's son blocked her at the outer doorway.

"No good, Miss—oh, you know your name. You're going to sit here and talk to me. You are going to know what little there is to know about me. You are going to tell me all about yourself and how they came to call you Peaches. You are going to tell me how well you like this Buffalo and why you came and—"

She flared.

"You are no Southern gentleman or you would not insult me this way. You think I am impressed by your New York swagger an' you all—you all are nothing—but—but tacky!"

With the blow she finished crimson of face.

But his audacity was not over. He moved closer to her. He even dared to take hold of her two pretty shoulders.

"By gosh, now I like you better than any time before! I loved your drawl and your evident good-breeding—and oh, my word, but you have a temper. I've always said I'd never marry except I found some—there a—"

She broke away from him.

"You're a plain tacky!" she almost screamed.

But he gently brought her back to a place beside him on the davenport. "Well, you win, Peaches. Just as well start calling you that now as later. You win! To tell the whole truth, I've been sort of a loafer. Never got right down and made much of myself. Probably because I was as you said—'tacky.' Mother wrote me that she knew somebody who could steady me, train me, build me into a real decent chap. So I came out."

The new manner of southern hospitality changed the crimson of anger to one of humility.

"An' heah I was all time runnin' off from you-all! That was tacky, sah, of me."

At the end of many days of comradeship that began at the closing hours of hard clerical work, Peaches gave in and promised everything.

Her written explanation to the folks in Birmingham follows:

"It was just the effect, I reckon, of being so near Niagara and all the honeymooners. But Mr. Dick—why, I have been wondering how long I got along without him—and Buffalo!"

To Choose Colors That Flatter You

Analyze Complexion Before Selecting Apparel and Save Much Grief.

Never before has color played so important a part in the wardrobe, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star. The tendency of all ages to choose the hues of the rainbow has brought beauty to some and grief to many. Many a woman who has worn black-and-white or navy blue with distinction is encouraged to indulge in her fancy in one of the vivid tones only to destroy completely her distinction of being well-dressed.

There are many colors for every woman if she will choose carefully by analyzing her own color tones and studying the effect of the various shades on her complexion. Not for everyone is the natural shade of kasha. The definite type with dark hair and clear skin looks smart in the neutral tones. But the sallow-skinned or drab-haired becomes lifeless-looking in this colorless gray regardless of the smartness of the shade. There are tones that carry tints of rose and blue and green that may be used to reflect color into the face and give the garment character even on this type of wearer.

Blue has long been a favorite with discriminating women who know it in this navy shade to be most becoming and serviceable. The lighter shades may sallow the skin, and the vivid, bright blues lighten pale eyes. The grayed tones, periwinkle, periwinkle, corn flower, are the ideal choice of the blonde with clear skin. The brunette whose skin is not on the olive cast may wear it, but it is not her best choice to develop her best coloring.

As for roses, which the French have favored for some time, is coming to us in the facing on the brims of the large hats, in neckwear, and even for some entire frocks.

The browns, which apparently are of never-ending popularity, need care in their selection. Nothing is more pathetic than a drab or dark-skinned woman in a warm brown. Cigarette, Havana, beige, thrush, hazel all have warm tones and are best worn by the pale brunette. The soft tans, light browns, fawns are equally good for blonde or brunette with clear skin.

Yellow is to repeat its success of last summer. While it is artistic in combination with the white attire of summer, its popularity, more likely, is due to the fact that there is a shade of yellow to flatter every complexion. For the brunette yellow is especially suitable. The blonde must wear it with discrimination as certain yellow imparts a violet cast to the skin. The cold shades, citron, olive and lemon are for the brunette, and the ash blonde will look her fairest blondness in the faint yellows. Orange is difficult to wear and is so vivid that it is most attractive when used only for contrast. Some brunettes find it whitens their skin. Apricot, not so daring a shade, may be worn either by the fair or dark-haired.

Thistlebloom, another of the season's favored colors, is a flattering choice for the woman who finds the neutral shades, the warm browns and the blues unsuited to her coloring. It is a rose orchid that freshens the color of the skin and may safely be worn by those to whom lavender is impossible. For the dull-haired type it is a salvation.

Green, always good for spring and summer, should be chosen with considerable thought. The blonde may look cheap in the wrong shade, the brunette with sallow skin may take on a greenish cast and the blue-eyed woman become a green-eyed monster, while the Titian-haired girl with ruddy color needs the slate tone. Chosen thoughtfully green is a flattering color that practically every type may wear.

Tailored Detail Shown in This Out-Door Frock

Perfection in tailored detail is pronounced in this very attractive outdoor frock which may be developed in any of the seasonable materials.

The Home Garden

What is Home without a Garden?

Be a Vegetable Specialist

Not all people like the same vegetables so it is a waste of time and space to grow vegetables for which you do not care. Devote your garden to those that you like most and specialize in these. Suppose green peas are your favorite "garden sass." There is a great list from which to choose and during the pea season you might grow five or six varieties, testing out new kinds that you have never grown or seen. You will find some revelations in the newer peas.

Asparagus lovers will want a larger asparagus bed than they will string beans, for instance. For one who likes asparagus almost daily while it is in season, a good-sized patch is necessary. For your garden space to your appetite.

Sweet corn is a special favorite with almost every one and here is a chance for experiment and prolonging the season by devoting the greater portion of the garden patch to various sweet corns, planting at intervals and planting early and late varieties at the same time. Now is a good time to start with the first planting of sweet corn, using one of the earliest kinds, such as Malakoff, Golden Bantam or other standard types. Nearly every gardener will have Golden Bantam. It has taken such a strong hold that it would take years for another variety to supplant it.

String beans are one of the easiest of garden crops to grow. You can try bush and pole varieties, green and wax podded and have a special bean garden if this appeals to you.

The salad garden offers an opportunity for ingenuity to keep the salad material going from spring until fall with a succession of lettuce, endive, tomatoes, green peppers, cress, corn salad, and cucumbers for the latter part of the season. Many gardeners specialize heavily in tomatoes for canning material as well as for catsup, chili sauces and various pickles and besides there is always a ready market for any surplus. Select a garden feature and develop it.

TOURISTS CAMP IN READINESS SOON

Will Offer its Wealth of Attractions by End of This Week

CARS ARE ARRIVING NOW

Plumbers at Work in Camp, Gas Will be Connected on Friday

The Brainerd tourist campsite is being placed in readiness for the reception of its annual visitors and will be in shape to offer all of its accommodations by the end of this week.

Tourists are already passing through Brainerd and are making use of the campsite even though all of its facilities are not available. The past week there have been on an average of about a half dozen automobile parties camped there each night. On Wednesday night the campers included two cars from California.

The camp has been thoroughly cleaned up from one end to the other, the running water has been again installed and is available for use now. Plumbers are at work reconnecting the toilets and other plumbing, and the gas will be connected on Friday.

New additions to the camp this year include more toilet facilities, and several more tables, which will make the Brainerd campsite the most completely equipped of any in this section of the state, if not in the Northwest.

The camp this year will offer tourists, in addition to a very beautiful site among the pines on the shore of the Mississippi river, running water, city gas for cooking at each table, laundry, shower baths with hot and cold water, and modern toilet facilities. Telephone service and electric lights complete the conveniences that make the Brainerd camp the most popular in the lake region.

All indications point to an unusual influx of summer tourists this season. Each year the Minnesota lakes receive more favorable advertising, as does also the local tourist's camp, with the result that there is an increase of visitors each season over the previous year. The hearty welcome and the courteous treatment accorded visitors here, bring them back the next season with many of their friends who have been informed of the many advantages offered at the Brainerd campsite.

BIRD STUDY CLUB

To Meet at Lake Home of Mrs. J. A. Thabes on Saturday Morning

WANT MAN WITH SPIRIT OF PLAINS

Does Crow Wing county boast a good broncho rider, steer wrestler or calf roper? Or a fellow adept at track and fancy riding? He may now be covering a policeman's beat, employed as delivery man for a moving concern, clerking in a store or holding down an office job, but if he still has the spirit of the plains and ranges in him and thinks he's no back number, he's wanted. The Chicago Association of Commerce is putting on a "Roundup" August 15 to 23 and has asked the help of this newspaper in finding persons formerly having a part of the life of the great West.

Thirty thousand dollars in cash purses, in addition to world's championship titles, belts and trophies will go to the victors of the "Chicago Roundup" which is to be held in the Grant Park Stadium under the direction of Tex Austin, famous rodeo man, and it is thought that there may be some one in Crow Wing county who is still good enough to try and run away with a part of this money.

The "Roundup" marks Chicago's debut as the rodeo capital of America. Cheyenne and Pendleton have been the two great rodeo centers of the country; hereafter there will be three with plans laid to make Chicago the greatest of all. Chicago, the greatest cowboy town and business center, is out to outdo itself in the scale of its "Roundup," and the cream of rodeo talent will be there. All the traditional events of the Western epic will be staged, with entries from all over the country, Canada, Mexico, Argentina and Australia.

There will be none of the "circus" atmosphere at this rodeo, it is announced. No paid performers. It is a free-for-all and open to the world, and those who think that they still have some of the blood of the West in them will never have a better chance to prove it. Arrangements are going forth for the entertainment of "Roundup" visitors from this and other localities on a scale unheard of in the annals of American business. The town will be in festive humor and all comers from the least known to the most prominent are assured by a tremendous welcome.

Any person or persons here who think they might be interested in entering the "Roundup" lists may secure a complete prize list and rules by writing the Chicago Association of Commerce.

State Experimental Creamery at Albert Lea

(By United Press)

St. Paul, May 21.—Control of the state experimental creamery at Albert Lea has been transferred from the state dairy and food commission to the dairy husbandry division of the University of Minnesota.

The creamery was established by the legislature of 1911 for the purpose of demonstrating the best methods of creamery operation and also to aid state managers in various working problems. The building is owned by the state and has been operated as a co-operative plant, farmers in the tributary county being members of the board of directors.

In transferring the plant to the University division, Minnesota has taken a step forward in experimental work along that line, according to Dr. C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy division, University Farm.

"Investigational work with butter manufacture is of special importance in Minnesota," Dr. Eckles said, "and the state creamery will make it possible to conduct such work to the best advantage. This work will not involve heavy expense as much of it could be combined with the regular operation of the plant."

"One of the outstanding opportunities at present is to help develop the best means of utilizing the enormous amount of by-products available in this state. Thus there are available annually about 4,100,000, 000 pounds of skim milk and buttermilk."

"After taking out all that can be used economically for livestock feeding there remains 1,750,000,000 pounds which could and should be used for industrial purposes. A start has been made in that direction but almost the whole problem is before us. It is clearly impossible to do much in this line except where an abundance of the typical by-product is available, as would be the case at the state creamery."

The output at the state creamery has averaged approximately 450,000 pounds of butter annually. In 1924 it made a total of 485,000 pounds.

REPEAT SUCCESS OF FIRST NIGHT

"Lions Minstrel Mimics" Greeted With Larger Crowd Than on Tuesday

NUMBERS EXCELLENTLY GIVEN Comedy Was Very Good, Entire Attraction Had Much Pep and Snap

All of the fine things that were said of the first showing of the "Lions Minstrel Mimics" on Tuesday evening were verified and exceeded at the second performance on Wednesday evening, when an even larger audience greeted the local talent production than on the preceding night. The Brainerd Lions club, under whose auspices the show was presented, appreciates very much the support of the public in patronizing the "Minstrel Mimics," and the public has voiced its satisfaction of the excellent manner in which the musical fantasy was presented.

The solos and choruses were excellently rendered, and received much hearty applause. The comedy was very good and the entire attraction had the pep and snap so necessary to make such a production successful, but which is too often lacking when staged by home talent casts.

One number not scheduled on the program, but which proved a very pleasing addition, and a surprise that won much applause, was little Miss Roberta Goldstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Goldstone, who, though only two years old, wore a grass skirt and took her place with the chorus of Island Belles, facing her audience and doing her steps with the air of a veteran.

Soloists, who made very good impressions with their audience, and who deserve mention for the excellent manner in which they rendered their numbers, include A. C. Mraz, Dr. G. I. Badeaux, D. H. Fullerton, L. F. Hough, W. E. Anderson, George Sweet and Claude Jones, in the minstrel first part, Miss Ella Olson, in the popular song revue, and the duet by Messrs Sweet and Anderson in the musical comedy, "The Isle of Never Known," which closed the performance.

The grand finale was something new in its line, being nearly an act in itself. In a very clever manner the entire cast of 75 people was massed upon the stage and presented a closing drill and dance that brought the "Minstrel Mimics" to a very fitting close. As an encore to this finale, the cast sang a good night song while staging a very difficult stage formation.

The "Arcadians" orchestra, assisted Miss Mildred Skauge, pianist, furnished the background for all of the musical numbers in a very pleasing manner, adding greatly to the effect of the dances and choruses.

Much credit is due the director, Jack Geller, of the John B. Rogers Producing Company, for his untiring efforts and the excellent results obtained with his large cast. The cast itself made an enviable record, in that not one break occurred in the lines spoken or sung on either night.

As an appreciation of the work of the performers, the Lions club will entertain the entire cast at a banquet this Thursday evening at the Ransford hotel, beginning at 7 o'clock. The honor guests will be given an insight into the manner in which the Lions conduct their meetings, and will in addition be furnished with a few surprises for good measure.

HENRY E. KUNDERT PLEADS GUILTY

Indicted on 4 Counts, He Pleads Guilty to One Charge of Grand Larceny

THEN SENTENCED BY COURT Goes to Stillwater For a Term of From One to Ten Years

Henry E. Kundert held to the district court on four indictments by the grand jury, appeared before the court on Thursday morning and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the first degree.

Mr. Kundert was sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater at hard labor until discharged therefrom by due process of law. Grand larceny in the first degree carries with it a penalty of from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

The defendant was indicted on four charges, namely two of grand larceny and two of forgery. Upon pleading guilty to one charge of grand larceny, County Attorney Walter F. Wieland moved the court that the other three charges be nolle, and this motion was granted.

The jury in the case of Charles C. Sweet, charged with abandonment, returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment. Oscar Forslund was foreman of this jury. The defendant was sentenced to the reformatory at St. Cloud until discharged therefrom by due process of law.

Levi Frink and Etta Frink, each found guilty of manufacturing liquor, appeared before the court and each received a sentence of 30 days in jail and a fine of $150, with an additional 30 days in jail if the fine is not promptly paid.

John Klinkelhofer, charged with abandonment, appeared before the court and asked permission to withdraw his plea of not guilty and to enter a plea of guilty. This was granted, and the defendant was sentenced to hard labor at Stillwater, sentence being suspended on condition that Klinkelhofer pay the secretary of the Child Welfare Board of the county the sum of $100.

Tourists are already passing through Brainerd and are making use of the campsite even though all of its facilities are not available. The past week there have been on an average of about a half dozen automobile parties camped there each night. On Wednesday night the campers included two cars from California.

The camp has been thoroughly cleaned up from one end to the other, the running water has been again installed and is available for use now. Plumbers are at work reconnecting the toilets and other plumbing, and the gas will be connected on Friday.

New additions to the camp this year include more toilet facilities, and several more tables, which will make the Brainerd campsite the most completely equipped of any in this section of the state, if not in the Northwest.

The camp this year will offer tourists, in addition to a very beautiful site among the pines on the shore of the Mississippi river, running water, city gas for cooking at each table, laundry, shower baths with hot and cold water, and modern toilet facilities. Telephone service and electric lights complete the conveniences that make the Brainerd camp the most popular in the lake region.

All indications point to an unusual influx of summer tourists this season. Each year the Minnesota lakes receive more favorable advertising as does also the local tourist's camp, with the result that there is an increase of visitors each season over the previous year. The hearty welcome and the courteous treatment accorded visitors here, bring them back the next season with many of their friends who have been informed of the many advantages offered at the Brainerd campsite.

WANT MAN WITH SPIRIT OF PLAINS

Does Crow Wing county boast a good broncho rider, steer wrestler or calf roper? Or a fellow adept at track and fancy riding? He may now be covering a policeman's beat, employed as delivery man for a moving concern, clerking in a store or holding down an office job, but if he still has the spirit of the plains and ranges in him and thinks he's no back number, he's wanted. The Chicago Association of Commerce is putting on a "Roundup" August 15 to 23 and has asked the help of this newspaper in finding persons formerly having a part of the life of the great West.

Thirty thousand dollars in cash purses, in addition to world's championship titles, belts and trophies will go to the victors of the "Chicago Roundup" which is to be held in the Grant Park Stadium under the direction of Tex Austin, famous rodeo man, and it is thought that there may be some one in Crow Wing county who is still good enough to try and run away with a part of this money.

The "Roundup" marks Chicago's debut as the rodeo capital of America. Cheyenne and Pendleton have been the two great rodeo centers of the country; hereafter there will be three with plans laid to make Chicago the greatest of all. Chicago, the greatest cowboy town and business center, is out to outdo itself in the scale of its "Roundup," and the cream of rodeo talent will be there. All the traditional events of the Western epic will be staged, with entries from all over the country, Canada, Mexico, Argentina and Australia.

There will be none of the "circus" atmosphere at this rodeo, it is announced. No paid performers. It is a free-for-all and open to the world, and those who think that they still have some of the blood of the West in them will never have a better chance to prove it. Arrangements are going forth for the entertainment of "Roundup" visitors from this and other localities on a scale unheard of in the annals of American business. The town will be in festive humor and all comers from the least known to the most prominent are assured by a tremendous welcome.

Any person or persons here who think they might be interested in entering the "Roundup" lists may secure a complete prize list and rules by writing the Chicago Association of Commerce.

State Experimental Creamery at Albert Lea

(By United Press)

St. Paul, May 21.—Control of the state experimental creamery at Albert Lea has been transferred from the state dairy and food commission to the dairy husbandry division of the University of Minnesota.

The creamery was established by the legislature of 1911 for the purpose of demonstrating the best methods of creamery operation and also to aid state managers in various working problems. The building is owned by the state and has been operated as a co-operative plant, farmers in the tributary county being members of the board of directors.

In transferring the plant to the University division, Minnesota has taken a step forward in experimental work along that line, according to Dr. C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy division, University Farm.

"Investigational work with butter manufacture is of special importance in Minnesota," Dr. Eckles said, "and the state creamery will make it possible to conduct such work to the best advantage. This work will not involve heavy expense as much of it could be combined with the regular operation of the plant."

"One of the outstanding opportunities at present is to help develop the best means of utilizing the enormous amount of by-products available in this state. Thus there are available annually about 4,109,000, 000 pounds of skim milk and butter-milk."

"After taking out all that can be used economically for livestock feeding there remains 1,750,000,000 pounds which could and should be used for industrial purposes. A start has been made in that direction but almost the whole problem is before us. It is clearly impossible to do much in this line except where an abundance of the typical by-product is available, as would be the case at the state creamery."

The output at the state creamery has averaged approximately 450,000 pounds of butter annually. In 1924 it made a total of 485,000 pounds.

REPEAT SUCCESS OF FIRST NIGHT

"Lions Minstrel Mimics" Greeted With Larger Crowd Than on Tuesday

NUMBERS EXCELLENTLY GIVEN

Comedy Was Very Good, Entire Attraction Had Much Pep and Snap

All of the fine things that were said of the first showing of the "Lions Minstrel Mimics" on Tuesday evening were verified and exceeded at the second performance on Wednesday evening, when an even larger audience greeted the local talent production than on the preceding night. The Brainerd Lions club, under whose auspices the show was presented, appreciates very much the support of the public in patronizing the "Minstrel Mimics," and the public has voiced its satisfaction of the excellent manner in which the musical fantasy was presented.

The solos and choruses were excellently rendered, and received much hearty applause. The comedy was very good and the entire attraction had the pep and snap so necessary to make such a production successful, but which is too often lacking when staged by home talent casts.

One number not scheduled on the program, but which proved a very pleasing addition, and a surprise that won much applause, was little Miss Roberta Goldstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Goldstone, who, though only two years old, wore a grass skirt and took her place with the chorus of Island Belles, facing her audience and doing her steps with the air of a veteran.

Soloists, who made very good impressions with their audience, and who deserve mention for the excellent manner in which they rendered their numbers, include A. C. Mraz, Dr. G. I. Badeaux, D. H. Fullerton, L. F. Hough, W. E. Anderson, George Sweet and Claude Jones, in the minstrel first part, Miss Ella Olson, in the popular song revue, and the duet by Messrs Sweet and Anderson in the musical comedy, "The Isle of Never Known," which closed the performance.

The grand finale was something new in its line, being nearly an act in itself. In a very clever manner the entire cast of 75 people was massed upon the stage and presented a closing drill and dance that brought the "Minstrel Mimics" to a very fitting close. As an encore to this finale, the cast sang a good night song while staging a very difficult stage formation.

The "Arcadians" orchestra, assisting Miss Mildred Skauge, pianist, furnished the background for all of the musical numbers in a very pleasing manner, adding greatly to the effect of the dances and choruses.

Much credit is due the director, Jack Geller, of the John B. Rogers Producing Company, for his untiring efforts and the excellent results obtained with his large cast. The cast itself made an enviable record, in that not one break occurred in the lines spoken or sung on either night.

As an appreciation of the work of the performers, the Lions club will entertain the entire cast at a banquet this Thursday evening at the Ransford hotel, beginning at 7 o'clock. The honor guests will be given an insight into the manner in which the Lions conduct their meetings, and will in addition be furnished with a few surprises for good measure.

HENRY E. KUNDERT PLEADS GUILTY

Indicted on 4 Counts, He Pleads Guilty to One Charge of Grand Larceny

THEN SENTENCED BY COURT

Goes to Stillwater For a Term of From One to Ten Years

Henry E. Kundert held to the district court on four indictments by the grand jury, appeared before the court on Thursday morning and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the first degree.

Mr. Kundert was sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater at hard labor until discharged therefrom by due process of law. Grand larceny in the first degree carries with it a penalty of from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

The defendant was indicted on four charges, namely two of grand larceny and two of forgery. Upon pleading guilty to one charge of grand larceny, County Attorney Walter F. Wieland moved the court that the other three charges be nolle, and this motion was granted.

The jury in the case of Charles C. Sweet, charged with abandonment, returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment. Oscar Forslund was foreman of this jury. The defendant was sentenced to the reformatory at St. Cloud until discharged therefrom by due process of law.

Levi Frink and Etta Frink, each found guilty of manufacturing liquor, appeared before the court and each received a sentence of 30 days in jail and a fine of $150, with an additional 30 days in jail if the fine is not promptly paid.

John Klinkelhoefer, charged with abandonment, appeared before the court and asked permission to withdraw his plea of not guilty and to enter a plea of guilty. This was granted, and the defendant was sentenced to hard labor at Stillwater, sentence being suspended on condition that Klinkelhoefer pay the secretary of the Child Welfare Board of

SCOTTY'S FEAT GREAT, BUT DID IT PAY?

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 21.—Count up the men in your acquaintance, who are engaged in a fairly laborious profession and figure how many of them have not missed a day in the office or in the shop for three years and a half. Perhaps you can point out five or six, maybe more, maybe less and perhaps none at all.

The fewer you know who have not been stricken with illness for three years and a half, who will have not been disabled and rendered unfit for duty or who have not taken one day off to go hunting or fishing, the more you will appreciate the remarkable record of Everett Scott, the veteran deacon who has been playing shortstop for the New York Yankees.

On June 20, 1916, Mike McNally, who was playing shortstop for the New York Yankees, was taken out of the lineup to let a pinch hitter bat for him and Scott was sent to his position to play the rest of the game. From that day until May 6, 1925, Scott didn't miss a game and when he was finally benched he had made a record of playing in 1,307 consecutive games, not counting the games in four world's series that he did not miss.

Some ball players will tell you that Scott's record deserves full credit and a prominent place on the list of those stars who have done something real big in baseball, but they will tell you—not for publication—that Scotty was foolish to do it.

"Why burn yourself out for any record? Why give a substitute the life of Rieley on the bench or keep a substitute out of a job? A well known player said a few days ago. "There's no sentiment in baseball. They'll keep you in the game as long as they need you, but when you're through they look for a spot where they can send you and get the best bargain for someone else. That record didn't do Scotty any good. When he slowed up too much they benched him and sent in a kid. He wouldn't have slowed up so soon if he hadn't burnt himself up after that record. Maybe he could have had two or three more good years in the game. But when he's through, he'll have to go to the minors. Down in the bushes they don't pay on records. They pay on how much ground a fellow can cover and how many hits he can get. We all like Scotty. There isn't a better fellow in baseball, but baseball is a business where it's every fellow for himself and where a fellow has to take care of his own end. I'm not going in for any records, I'm going to save myself so I can make a big league salary just as long as I can."

He Gave 'Em
the Bird

By MILES OVERHOLT

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

HENRY BEEKINS read his stepfather's will to him. The only part that interested him was this paragraph:

"And to my beloved stepson, Henry Beekins, I bequeath Goosey, my pet parrot, admonishing Henry at the same time to be observing in all things, and the parrot will show him the way to the wealth and contentment he has a right to expect."

"Maybe," I said to Henry, "maybe the darn parrot was his secretary or something—maybe," I said, brightly, "maybe it ain't a parrot at all. 'Maybe it's a secretary-bird.'"

But it was a parrot. We went over to the old homestead and got it next morning. The caretaker said that all the bird ever said, so far as he had been able to hear, was "Goosey Gander."

Well, Henry went over town the next morning, leaving me alone in the apartment with the parrot, my job being to listen for words of wisdom from the bird.

But I went and fell asleep or something, and I either walked in my sleep and kicked the cage over. Anyway, I woke up with a crash and there was the parrot sitting on the window sill.

And then, before I could reach him, he flapped his wings and flew across the tops of buildings, and when I reached the street, why, the parrot was nowhere to speak of.

I walked myself lame, and then I hired me a taxicab and rode up and down and all about.

Finally the taxi driver said he had an idea.

"The janitor over to the Elks' club, he's a friend of mine," the driver said. "They got a parrot over there. We'll go get him."

I had no sooner anchored my Elk parrot inside the cage than Henry came in at the door.

"Did Goosey talk today?" Henry wondered, right off.

"Well, no, not to speak of," I said.

And just then the parrot piped up. "Hello, Bill." And he said that same "Hello, Bill," nineteen hundred and forty-six times that evening. It got on my nerves, too, but it started Henry to thinking.

"Do you know what that 'Hello, Bill,' means?" he asked me.

"It means—say, 'Hello' might mean telephone—see?" said Henry.

"Go on," I grunted.

"Granting then that 'Hello' might mean telephone, why, 'Bill' might mean a telephone bill."

"Yeh?" I said, trying to keep from smorting.

"All right. I'm going to look for my financial secret in a telephone book," said Henry. Which he did.

Henry went over to the old homestead and got all the telephone bills his stepfather ever owned.

"I see that my stepfather did a great deal of long-distance telephoning last month and practically all to the same person named Gander at Long Beach. Who's Gander, I wonder?"

Henry took those telephone bills and added 'em up and multiplied 'em by things, and got a result, and then went out to see if he could find a safety deposit box with some of the fool numbers on, which he couldn't.

But while he was gone on his silly errand, why, I went and found Goosey—back at the old homestead, of course—the only place I hadn't looked. I took the Elk parrot home and placed Goosey in his—her—cage, and then Henry came home and said he hadn't found any treasure.

"I'm going to call up this man Gander, anyway," he said.

Yes, sir, he got him right away—getting the right number the first time! Well, this man Gander was a doctor, and he said he'd be right up. And after a few hours he came.

He told Henry that the money was all safe, and wasn't he clever to get onto what the parrot was saying so soon!

"I was your grandfather's dearest friend," said Doctor Gander, "and he entrusted your money with me. How ever, it is all safe. You are merely to come down to the bank with me tomorrow and get it."

"Pretty clever of your stepfather using Goosey, the parrot, that way, wasn't it?" went on Doctor Gander. "And pretty clever of you, too, to understand Goosey right away."

"Well, the parrot wasn't very informative," smiled Henry. "We had only two words to work on."

"Two? You mean three," said Doctor Gander.

"Two," said Henry.

"Three," said Doctor Gander, "Go see Gander."

"They were 'Hello, Bill,'" said Henry.

"Impossible," said the Doc. Then I began to see something. That darn Goosey parrot hadn't been talking about himself at all. He wasn't saying "Goosey Gander." The green-painted son-of-a-gun was insisting that we "Go see Gander!"

So I stepped forth with a confession and earned a medal by telling something like the truth, which made everything merry and bright.

"Better than ever," laughed Doctor Gander. "That 'Hello, Bill' required more skill than 'Go see Gander,' anyway."

And Goosey, who hadn't been saying a word, fluttered his feathers, looked around him in a wise sort of a manner, and said, sadly:

"Aw, let's have a drink!"

Which we did.

Ants Invade England

A new and most undesirable visitor has arrived at Eastbourne, a popular seaside resort on the south coast of England. This visitor is the Argentine ant. Its appetite is voracious and undiscriminating. It will eat young plants, young birds, and has been known to attack babies in the cradle. There is nothing safe from its onslaughts, and it can live anywhere between the tropics and the poles.

In Madeira it has almost exterminated the birds and ruined the coffee plants. These ants seem to be free from any known parasite to prey upon them, the cold of a refrigerator has no permanent effect upon them, and during a flood they mass themselves into a ball and float.

Statesmen Not Dressy

The statement that Premier Baldwin is dressing more carefully than he did during his previous term as premier of the imperial parliament has brought forth a statement that none of Britain's premiers have been particularly fussy with regard to attire. Mr. Lloyd George wore well-cut clothes in his premiership, but never gave the idea that he worried about them; the same is true of Mr. Asquith. Lord Balfour was never dressy. Granville used to tell how he met Gladstone in Regent street wearing his top hat back to front. Lord Salisbury was clothed rather than dressed, and "Dizzy" had ceased to affect the dandy before he became premier.

Odd Form of Evidence

The imprint of a perfect cupid's bow left on paper by the rouged lips of pretty Bertha Riley, eighteen of Los Angeles, was the evidence that caused the conviction of a snatch thief. The prisoner was charged with taking Miss Riley's purse. The purse was not unlike thousands of others when held up to the view of the court. The prosecutor opened it and produced the imprint of the young lady's lips. Another imprint then taken showed similarity, strengthening the evidence.

KING OF SWAT
GOES THROUGH
BATTING DRILL.BABE RUTH VISITS STADIUM FOR
FIRST TIME THIS SEASON.HE IS ANXIOUS TO START WITH HIS HITTING PROGRAM

New York, May 21.—Babe Ruth will be able to join the floundering New York Yankees, when they return home after the first western invasion of the year. The team will be back in the east May 28, and the Babe should be ready to do some bench duty.

His recovery from the operation he underwent was more rapid than expected, but he is weak and soft from being in bed for more than five weeks. He is to be permitted to work out every day at the Yankee stadium, but the doctors have warned him not to do too much.

"I think I've learned by this experience to take care of myself," the Babe said. "I was never sick before and I never want to be sick again."

Ruth's return to the game is almost certain to improve the Yankees who have been in a very low state of mind. It is not the actual batting or fielding of the Babe that is needed. It is the Ruth threat and the moral effect of the Babe upon the opposition. Ball players say that even the best of pitchers are worried when Ruth is in the game and that the threat affects their pitching against the other batters. When Ruth is not in the game, opposition clubs consider the Yankees merely as a baseball team and they have been treated as such this season.

The Yankees have not been going right at all. When the pitching is good they cannot get runs. When the team is batting the pitching goes bad and when the batting and pitching is ordinary the fielding falls off.

The Yankees are the only eastern team that is failing to hold up its end through the first interseasonal struggles of the early season. The Giants have lost only two games to western clubs, one to Chicago and one to St. Louis. The Brooklyn Robins are doing almost as well, only having lost three games, to Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis. The Phillies have lost four games to the west, two to the Pirates and one each to the Cardinals and the Cubs. The Cincinnati Reds took a bad tumble when they hit the east, losing four games in New York, three in Brooklyn and one in Boston.

The Philadelphia Athletics, setting the pace in the American league, have lost only two games since they have been in the west and they were both dropped to the Chicago White Sox. The Washington Senators lost four games, two in Chicago, one in Cleveland and one in St. Louis.

The Yankees left a trial behind them all over the west. They lost three in Chicago, one in St. Louis and two in Detroit.

The Red Sox dropped four in Cleveland, three in St. Louis and two in Detroit.

The inter-grade school track meet will be held at Gregory park on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. It will be adjourned when the Minneapolis friendship tour arrives in the city, and will be resumed at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rotary club is offering a tall silver loving cup to the winning school. A full schedule of this meet will be published in Friday's Dispatch.

FAMOUS FORTS
IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Boonesborough, Symbol of
Frontier America

Boonesborough is more than Kentucky's most famous fort. It is a national landmark whose palisaded walls symbolize the American frontier and its name stands as a monument to the memory of Daniel Boone, the one great American pioneer. Brief as was its existence, there are few forts with a more romantic history.

In 1775 Col. Richard Henderson, a North Carolina land speculator, sent Daniel Boone to survey a road into Kentucky, the "Dark and Bloody Ground," and to build a fort there. Boone set out with 20 men and, after several skirmishes with hostile Indians, he reached his goal April 1, and on April 29 began building a fort.

Since Boonesborough was typical of all frontier forts, it is worthy of description. At each of the four corners was a two-story blockhouse. A series of little cabins placed close together, with their roofs sloping inward, was built along the sides, and the space in between these cabins was filled up with palisades. There were heavy gates in front and back and the whole fort inclosed a space 260 feet long and 150 feet wide. The walls, which were about twelve feet high, were loopholed for rifle fire, and there was hardly a nail or piece of iron in it.

From the date of its establishment there was always something thrilling taking place. In July, 1776, occurred the capture of the Boone and Callaway girls and their romantic rescue soon afterwards. The next year the Indians attacked Boonesborough and Simon Kenton made his famous rescue of Daniel Boone. In September of that year the British and Indians again besieged the fort after they had called out the frontiersmen for a council, and their treacherous attack under the white flag had failed. During this siege the Indians tried to get into the fort by digging under it. "What are you red rascals doing there?" one old frontiersman yelled to the savages in their own tongue. "Digging," was the return yell. "Blow you all to the devil soon; what you do?" "Oh," was the cheerful reply, "we're digging to meet you and intend to bury 500 of you."

Such were the incidents which make up the history of Boonesborough. After the Indian wars were over this pioneer station lost its importance and never became the metropolis of the state of Kentucky, as it once promised to do. Today Boonesborough is noted as a pleasure resort where hundreds go every year to play—a strange contrast to the grim scenes it witnessed in the days of Daniel Boone.

GOLF NEWS FRESH
FROM THE FAIRWAYS

Sunday last over a hundred members of the golf club were out for at least one round of golf and many played the second round while a few were not satisfied until they had doubled the course the second time.

Twenty-five tourists took advantage of the visitors playing privilege last week and with the warmer weather here probably double that number will use the course this week.

With a 44 at the 8th hole one of the 'regulars' had a nervous breakdown with a result that he took a seven on the 9th hole and thereby lost his first chance to register in the '40' class.

The Grounds and Membership committees will be out again next Sunday morning to assist any new members wishing instructions. A special invitation is also extended to any person wishing to join the club to be there at that time.

Brainerd has extended an invitation to the Little Falls club to an intercity tournament here on Decoration Day. Every member of the club, whether or not he intends to play, should make a special effort to be present to aid in welcoming and entertaining our visitors. Those wishing to play should hand in their names to the Tournament committee of which E. J. Egan is chairman at once so as to give them sufficient time to make the necessary arrangements with the Little Falls club.

Further information will be given out as soon as all arrangements are made.

MUSIC 'FANS' WILL
CROWD U STADIUM

Minneapolis, May 21.—The university stadium will hold thousands of music lovers instead of football fans Saturday night.

The event will be "The Children's Crusade," called important both as one of the largest musical events ever staged on the campus and as the farewell appearance of Gustave Tintol, concertmaster, who will appear for the last time with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Tintol, formerly concertmaster of the New York symphony, will leave to accept a position as professor of violin in the Eastman School of Music at Rochester.

"The Children's Crusade," by Gabriel Pierne, will be given by the combined chorus of the University Choral association, a special chorus of school children, and the Minneapolis Symphony.

Ten years ago the "Crusade" was presented in Minneapolis under the direction of Emil Oberholfer. It has not been presented in the Twin Cities since.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will appear on the campus for the first time when it takes part in the event.

Tickets are on sale at the old library building on the University campus and at the Cable Piano Co., Nicollet at 8th st.

Strictly a Ford schedule is used in making our charges for repair work. You can charge it at Lively's.

Mr. Tuttle Can Sleep
After Gas is Gone

"After taking Adlerika, the heavy feeling (gas) in my abdomen is entirely gone and I get a good night's rest now." (signed) J. C. Tuttle. Adlerika removes gas in TEN minutes and brings out a surprising amount of old waste matter you never thought was in your system. This excellent intestinal evacuant is wonderful for constipation or stomach trouble. Stops that full, bloated feeling. Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Co.—Advt.

Takes the Creak
Out of Knees

Joint-Ease

If you want to take the creakiness out of your knees or out of any other joint for that matter, ask Johnson's Pharmacy, Economy Drug Co. or any good druggist for a tube of Joint-Ease today.

Rub it on tonight and you'll be glad you read this little notice when you get up tomorrow morning.

Joint-Ease is a penetrating emollient for stiff, swollen, creaky, pain tormented joints and for that purpose millions of tubes are sold. A minute's rubbing and away it goes through skin and flesh right to the tendons and ligaments of the joints. You can use it twice in one evening when pain is intense and you want instant relief.

SCOTTY'S FEAT GREAT, BUT DID IT PAY?

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 21.—Count up the men in your acquaintance, who are engaged in a fairly laborious profession and figure how many of them have not missed a day in the office or in the shop for three years and a half. Perhaps you can point out five or six, maybe more, maybe less and perhaps none at all.

The fewer you know who have not been stricken with illness for three years and a half, who will have not been disabled and rendered unfit for duty or who have not taken one day off to go hunting or fishing, the more you will appreciate the remarkable record of Everett Scott, the veteran deacon who has been playing shortstop for the New York Yankees.

On June 20, 1916, Mike McNally, who was playing shortstop for the New York Yankees, was taken out of the lineup to let a pinch hitter bat for him and Scott was sent to his position to play the rest of the game. From that day until May 6, 1925, Scotty didn't miss a game and when he was finally benched he had made a record of playing in 1,307 consecutive games, not counting the games in four world's series that he did not miss.

Some ball players will tell you that Scotty's record deserves full credit and a prominent place on the list of those stars who have done something real big in baseball, but they will tell you—not for publication—that Scotty was foolish to do it.

"Why burn yourself out for any record? Why give a substitute the life of Riley on the bench or keep a substitute out of a job? A well known player said a few days ago. 'There's no sentiment in baseball. They'll keep you in the game as long as they need you, but when you're through they look for a spot where they can send you and get the best bargain for someone else. That record didn't do Scotty any good. When he slowed up too much they benched him and sent in a kid. He wouldn't have slowed up so soon if he hadn't burnt himself up after that record. Maybe he could have had two or three more good years in the game. But when he's through, he'll have to go to the minors. Down in the bushes they don't pay on records. They pay on how much ground a fellow can cover and how many hits he can get. We all like Scotty. There isn't a better fellow in baseball, but baseball is a business where it's every fellow for himself and where a fellow has to take care of his own end. I'm not going in for any records, I'm going to save myself so I can make a big league salary just as long as I can.'"

He Gave 'Em
the Bird

By MILES OVERHOLT

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

HENRY BEEKINS read his stepfather's will to me. The only part that interested him was this paragraph:

"And to my beloved stepson, Henry Beekins, I bequeath Goosey, my pet parrot, admonishing Henry at the same time to be observing in all things, and the parrot will show him the way to the wealth and contentment he has a right to expect."

"Maybe," I said to Henry, "maybe the darn parrot was his secretary or something—maybe," I said, brightly, "maybe it ain't a parrot at all. 'Maybe it's a secretary-bird.'"

But it was a parrot. We went over to the old homestead and got it next morning. The caretaker said that all the bird ever said, so far as he had been able to hear, was "Goosey Gander."

Well, Henry went over town the next morning, leaving me alone in the apartment with the parrot, my job being to listen for words of wisdom from the bird.

But I went and fell asleep or something, and I either walked in my sleep and kicked the cage over. Anyway, I woke up with a crash and there was the parrot sitting on the window sill.

And then, before I could reach him, he flapped his wings and flew across the tops of buildings, and when I reached the street, why, the parrot was nowhere to speak of.

I walked myself lame, and then I hired me a taxicab and rode up and down and all about.

Finally the taxi driver said he had an idea.

"The janitor over to the Elks' club, he's a friend of mine," the driver said. "They got a parrot over there. We'll go get him."

I had no sooner anchored my Elks parrot inside the cage than Henry came in at the door.

"Did Goosey talk today?" Henry wondered, right off.

"Well, no, not to speak of," I said.

And just then the parrot piped up. "Hello, Bill." And he said that same "Hello, Bill," nineteen hundred and forty-six times that evening. It got on my nerves, too, but it started Henry to thinking.

"Do you know what that 'Hello, Bill,' means?" he asked me.

"It means—see, 'Hello' might mean telephone—see?" said Henry.

"Go on," I grunted.

"Granting then that 'Hello' might mean telephone, why, 'Bill' might mean a telephone bill."

"Yeh?" I said, trying to keep from snorting.

"All right, I'm going to look for my financial secret in a telephone book," said Henry. Which he did.

Henry went over to the old homestead and got all the telephone bills his stepfather ever owned.

"I see that my stepfather did a great deal of long-distance telephoning last month and practically all to the same person—man named Gander at Long Beach. Who's Gander, I wonder?"

Henry took those telephone bills and added 'em up and multiplied 'em by things, and got a result, and then went out to see if he could find a safety deposit box with some of the fool numbers on, which he couldn't.

But while he was gone on his silly errand, why, I went and found Goosey—back at the old homestead, of course—the only place I hadn't looked. I took the Elks parrot home and placed Goosey in his—or her—cage, and then Henry came home and said he hadn't found any treasure.

"I'm going to call up this man Gander, anyway," he said.

Yes, sir, he got him right away—getting the right number the first time! Well, this man Gander was a doctor, and he said he'd be right up. And after a few hours he came.

He told Henry that the money was all safe, and wasn't he clever to get onto what the parrot was saying so soon!

"I was your grandfather's dearest friend," said Doctor Gander, "and he entrusted your money with me. However, it is all safe. You are merely to come down to the bank with me tomorrow and get it."

"Pretty clever of your stepfather using Goosey, the parrot, that way, wasn't it?" went on Doctor Gander. "And pretty clever of you, too, to understand Goosey right away."

"Well, the parrot wasn't very informative," smiled Henry. "We had only two words to work on."

"Two? You mean three," said Doctor Gander.

"Two," said Henry.

"Three," said Doctor Gander, "Go see Gander."

"They were 'Hello, Bill,'" said Henry.

"Impossible," said the Doc.

Then I began to see something. That darn Goosey parrot hadn't been talking about himself at all. He wasn't saying "Goosey Gander." The green-plated son-of-a-gun was insisting that we "Go see Gander!"

So I stepped forth with a confession and earned a medal by telling something like the truth, which made everything merry and bright.

"Better than ever," laughed Doctor Gander. "That 'Hello, Bill' required more skill than 'Go see Gander,' anyway."

And Goosey, who hadn't been saying a word, fluttered his feathers, looked around him in a wise sort of a manner, and said, sadly:

"Aw, let's have a drink!"

Which we did.

Ants Invade England

A new and most undesirable visitor has arrived at Eastbourne, a popular seaside resort on the south coast of England. This visitor is the Argentine ant. Its appetite is voracious and undiscriminating. It will eat young plants, young birds, and has been known to attack babies in the cradle. There is nothing safe from its onslaughts, and it can live anywhere between the tropics and the poles.

In Madeira it has almost exterminated the birds and ruined the coffee plants. These ants seem to be free from any known parasite to prey upon them, the cold of a refrigerator has no permanent effect upon them, and during a flood they mass themselves into a ball and float.

Statesmen Not Dressy

The statement that Premier Baldwin is dressing more carefully than he did during his previous term as premier of the imperial parliament has brought forth a statement that none of Britain's premiers have been particularly fussy with regard to attire. Mr. Lloyd George wore well-cut clothes in his premiership, but never gave the idea that he worried about them; the same is true of Mr. Asquith. Lord Balfour was never dressy. Granville used to tell how he met Gladstone in Regent street wearing his top hat back to front. Lord Salisbury was clothed rather than dressed, and "Dizzy" had ceased to affect the dandy before he became premier.

Odd Form of Evidence

The imprint of a perfect cupid's bow left on paper by the rouged lips of pretty Bertha Riley, eighteen of Los Angeles, was the evidence that caused the conviction of a snatch thief. The prisoner was charged with taking Miss Riley's purse. The purse was not unlike thousands of others when held up to the view of the court. The prosecutor opened it and produced the imprint of the young lady's lips. Another imprint then taken showed similarity, strengthening the evidence.

KING OF SWAT
GOES THROUGH
BATTING DRILLBABE RUTH VISITS STADIUM FOR
FIRST TIME THIS SEASON.HE IS ANXIOUS TO START WITH HIS HITTING PROGRAM

New York, May 21.—Babe Ruth will be able to join the floundering New York Yankees, when they return home after the first western invasion of the year. The team will be back in the east May 28, and the Babe should be ready to do some bench duty.

His recovery from the operation he underwent was more rapid than expected, but he is weak and soft from being in bed for more than five weeks. He is to be permitted to work out every day at the Yankee stadium, but the doctors have warned him not to do too much.

"I think I've learned by this experience to take care of myself," the Babe said. "I was never sick before and I never want to be sick again."

Ruth's return to the game is almost certain to improve the Yankees, who have been in a very low state of mind. It is not the actual batting or fielding of the Babe that is needed. It is the Ruth threat and the moral effect of the Babe upon the opposition. Ball players say that even the best of pitchers are worried when Ruth is in the game and that the threat affects their pitching against the other batters. When Ruth is not in the game, opposition clubs consider the Yankees merely as a baseball team and they have been treated as such this season.

The Yankees have not been going right at all. When the pitching is good they cannot get runs. When the team is batting the pitching goes bad and when the batting and pitching is ordinary the fielding falls off.

The Yankees are the only eastern team that is failing to hold up its end through the first interseasonal struggles of the early season. The Giants have lost only two games to western clubs, one to Chicago and one to St. Louis. The Brooklyn Robins are doing almost as well, only having lost three games, to Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis. The Phillies have lost four games to the west, two to the Pirates and one each to the Cardinals and the Cubs.

The Cincinnati Reds took a bad tumble when they hit the east, losing four games in New York, three in Brooklyn and one in Boston.

The Philadelphia Athletics, setting the pace in the American league, have lost only two games since they have been in the west and they were both dropped to the Chicago White Sox.

The Washington Senators lost four games, two in Chicago, one in Cleveland and one in St. Louis.

The Yankees left a trail behind them all over the west. They lost three in Chicago, one in St. Louis and two in Detroit.

The Red Sox dropped four in Cleveland, three in St. Louis and two in Detroit.

FAMOUS FORTS
IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Boonesborough, Symbol of
Frontier America

Boonesborough is more than Kentucky's most famous fort. It is a national landmark whose palisaded walls symbolize the American frontier and its name stands as a monument to the memory of Daniel Boone, the one great American pioneer. Brief as was its existence, there are few forts with a more romantic history.

In 1775 Col. Richard Henderson, a North Carolina land speculator, sent Daniel Boone to survey a road into Kentucky, the "Dark and Bloody Ground," and to build a fort there. Boone set out with 20 men and, after several skirmishes with hostile Indians, he reached his goal April 1, and on April 29 began building a fort.

Since Boonesborough was typical of all frontier forts, it is worthy of description. At each of the four corners was a two-story blockhouse. A series of little cabins placed close together, with their roofs sloping inward, was built along the sides, and the space in between these cabins was filled up with palisades. There were heavy gates in front and back and the whole fort enclosed a space 260 feet long and 150 feet wide. The walls, which were about twelve feet high, were loopholed for rifle fire, and there was hardly a nail or piece of iron in it.

From the date of its establishment there was always something thrilling taking place. In July, 1776, occurred the capture of the Boone and Callaway girls and their romantic rescue soon afterwards. The next year the Indians attacked Boonesborough and Simon Kenton made his famous rescue of Daniel Boone. In September of that year the British and Indians again besieged the fort after they had called out the frontiersmen for a council, and their treacherous attack under the white flag had failed. During this siege the Indians tried to get into the fort by digging under it. "What are you red rascals doing there?" one old frontiersman yelled to the savages in their own tongue. "Digging," was the return yell. "Blow you all to the devil soon; what do you?" "Oh," was the cheerful reply, "we're digging to meet you and intend to bury 500 of you."

Such were the incidents which make up the history of Boonesborough. After the Indian wars were over this pioneer station lost its importance and never became the metropolis of the state of Kentucky, as it once promised to do. Today Boonesborough is noted as a pleasure resort where hundreds go every year to play—a strange contrast to the grim scenes it witnessed in the days of Daniel Boone.

GOLF NEWS FRESH
FROM THE FAIRWAYS

Sunday last over a hundred members of the golf club were out for at least one round of golf and many played the second round while a few were not satisfied until they had doubled the course the second time.

Twenty-five tourists took advantage of the visitors playing privilege last week and with the warmer weather here probably double that number will use the course this week.

With a 44 at the 8th hole one of the 'regulars' had a nervous breakdown with a result that he took a seven on the 9th hole and thereby lost his first chance to register in the '40' class.

The Grounds and Membership committees will be out again next Sunday morning to assist any new members wishing instructions. A special invitation is also extended to any person wishing to join the club to be there at that time.

Brainerd has extended an invitation to the Little Falls club to an intercity tournament here on Decoration Day. Every member of the club, whether or not he intends to play, should make a special effort to be present to aid in welcoming and entertaining our visitors. Those wishing to play should hand in their names to the Tournament committee of which E. J. Egan is chairman at once so as to give them sufficient time to make the necessary arrangements with the Little Falls club.

Further information will be given out as soon as all arrangements are made.

MUSIC 'FANS' WILL
CROWD U STADIUM

Minneapolis, May 21.—The university stadium will hold thousands of music lovers instead of football fans Saturday night.

The event will be "The Children's Crusade," called important both as one of the largest musical events ever staged on the campus and as the farewell appearance of Gustave Tintol, concertmaster, who will appear for the last time with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Tintol, formerly concertmaster of the New York symphony, will leave to accept a position as professor of violin in the Eastman School of Music at Rochester.

"The Children's Crusade," by Gabriel Pierné, will be given by the combined chorus of the University Choral association, a special chorus of school children, and the Minneapolis Symphony.

Ten years ago the "Crusade" was presented in Minneapolis under the direction of Emil Oberholfer.
